Nice Lump Sum
Our System Changes

CONGRESS will give President Roosevelt a lump sum, a considerable lump of four thousand million dollars, to let him change from the system of doles and imitation jobs, "picking up leaves and pieces of paper," to real jobs and useful work.

We have no monopoly of the handing out money system in America.

The British government assumes responsibility for the care and maintenance of every able-bodied wage worker, insured or not insured, whose wages, when he works, are less than twenty-five dollars a week.

Seventeen million British wage earners will get enough pay from the government, in cash, to bring their incomes up to "a living standard," and idle workers will receive from the government cash on which to live, as a matter of right and decency, with no "charity stigma."

The American system undergoes a considerable change. Once the little boy was encouraged to stoop down, pick up a pin, get a job from the great business man, marry the daughter, own the firm, pile up millions of his own.

Now, if he does that he is "over-privileged," and must expect to have his money taken away from him. Instead of picking up pins, he is encouraged to wait until he can pick up an easy job on the theory that the world owes him a living, and he doesn't owe anybody anything.

That may develop a better race of Americans, and it may not develop a better race. The days of "pin-picker-up" today, head of the firm next year, are ended.

A day is coming when no man will do any work harder than pressing a button, and science, incidentally, will make crime obsolete.

For instance, the Joliet, Ill., jailer sent a fat "trusty" outdoors for a cigar, and the automatic "electric eye" at the gate saw him, flashed a light, and the innocent fat "trusty" was searched. A small metal shoehorn was found in his big loose shoe.

The electric eye flashes when anybody, passing the gate, has any sort of metal in his possession. No prisoner's friend hereafter can take in a pistol, file or steel saw.

What will happen in evolution when the hardest work will be button-pushing, all manual labor being done by machinery, man needing only a brain, no muscle?

Will women remain big in size to reproduce the race, and men dwindle until they resemble the male "parasite crab?" When you capture a "parasite crab" in deep sea water it is always a female. You will find her husband under one of her flippers, where she keeps him, and nourishes him.

That might happen to men—things as strange have happened. The little tree shrew is the ancestor of the whale, ninety feet long, and it might work the other way.

How rapidly do you talk? Very deliberate peasants, slow in thought, speak as slowly as thirty to forty words a minute, with a vocabulary of fewer than five hundred words. Some talk normally at an average rate of two hundred and twenty words a minute, and will tell you that their wives can outtalk them.

An official court reporter at the Hauptmann trial says the proceedings have averaged one hundred and eighty words a minute, fastest record in American criminal court records.

When Betty Gow was on the stand she speed went up to three hundred and fifty words a minute. That was not very fast for a young Scotch woman, angered by questions of the defense.

Riots in Mexico, five shot in attacks by students on the anti-Catholic Mexican "Red Shirts," that recently attacked unarmed men and women in church. Other rioting and shooting indicate a disturbed condition. The whole world is unsettled. Here, at least, we let religion alone, religion does not meddle with the state, and, as yet, there is no shooting.

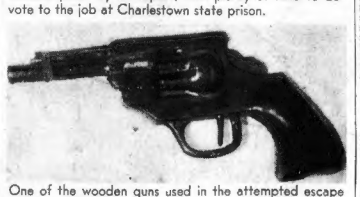
4 Slug Prison Guards

'Dillinger' Guns!

Charlestown Heard of Him

Ever see or handle an automatic pistol? Wouldn't this fool you? It's apparently perfect, even to the trademark and the little catch which holds the magazine. But it's only wood. Its maker, Convict Lawrence H. Boldway, one of four convicts attempting escape from state prison, was so proud of it he put his name on it, "Made by L. H. Boldway."

Real? No, just wood. But carved in imitation of an automatic pistol by an expert, with plenty of time to devote to the job at Charlestown state prison.



One of the wooden guns used in the attempted escape at Charlestown prison. It's patterned after a police revolver.

2 RECAPTURED NEAR WALL

DILLINGER GUNS OF WOOD USED IN DASH

Four convicts, one a killer, failed in a desperately ingenious attempt to escape from state prison today after breaking from their cells with three wooden guns and beating two guards unconscious.

Evading the bullets of prison officers but trapped inside the walls by quick mobilization of police by radio, the four were recaptured.

Two were caught at 3:30 a. m., within a half-hour of the break, as they attempted to scale the wall. They were confronted with a machine gun and put up no struggle. The others were not found until 8:20, hiding in a laundry. They were beaten down by comrades of the guards attacked.

The guards beaten were William H. Freeman, 35, of Concord, and Charles A. Witham, 38, of Cambridge. Freeman was slugged on the head no less than 20 times and suffered a brain concussion that is serious. Both are infirmary patients.

Those who tried to escape were Thaddeus Zakrzewski, 21, serving a life term for second degree mur-

Condon Says 'The Man'

The mysterious "John," to whom Dr. J. F. "Jafsie" Condon tossed $50,000 Lindbergh ransom money over a cemetery wall, is Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the aged "Jafsie" testified positively today at Flemington, N. J., where Hauptmann is on trial for murder. This is one of "Jafsie's" most recent photographs. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

FIN COM OUSTER HINT; COUNCIL MEETS

As the new executive council met for a busy session today, it was learned on good authority that Governor Curley would ask for the removal of all members of the Boston finance commission.

The grounds, on which such action would be taken, it was understood, were that the commission has lost public confidence by permitting itself to be used for political ends.

New members would be appointed immediately, subject to confirmation by the executive council, if removal of the members is voted.

Confirmation of Judge Joseph Sheehan, former Finance Commission member, as Superior Court judge is also expected at the meeting.

Warns Gold Clause May Mean 'Chaos'

By International News Service

Washington, Jan. 9—Attorney-General Homer Cummings told the Supreme Court today that the nation would be plunged "back into chaos" if the congressional law abrogating the gold clause in bonds is held unconstitutional.

The attorney-general said the gold cases affect the whole structure.

For all practical purposes invalidation of the gold clause would mean that the major portion of debtors in the United States, including the Government, would be forced to pay $1.70 for every dollar owned.

In discussing the possibilities of a decision unfavorable to the government today, official experts estimated that such a result of the case now being argued before the Supreme Court by Attorney-General Cummings would increase American debts by at least $157,000,000,000.

REILLY CROSS-EXAMINES CONDON ON RANSOM DEAL

By Associated Press

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9—After two hours and forty-five minutes of direct examination, during which he four times identified Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the "John" of the Lindbergh ransom negotiations, Dr. John F. Condon was given to defense counsel for cross-examination at 2:26 o'clock this afternoon.

Before starting to cross-examine Condon, a motion by Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly for a mistrial was denied by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard.

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9—Dr. John F. Condon—the famous "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh case—today electrified a capacity audience at the Hauptmann murder trial by four times dramatically asserting from the witness stand that Bruno Richard Hauptmann was the mysterious "John" to whom he paid over the $50,000 ransom in St. Raymond's Cemetery, the Bronx, on the night of April 2, 1932.

Condon, speaking clearly and confidently, gave the jury of four women and eight men a detailed description of what transpired the night of March 12, 1932, when he first talked to "John" in Woodlawn Cemetery, the Bronx.

They talked for an hour and ten minutes. It was the first "contact."

He implored the kidnaper, he said, to return the baby to his mother's arms. He told what he said to the kidnaper and what the kidnaper said to him.

He promised to do almost anything to get the baby back.

The spectators, most of them women, murmured as Condon related how, when he first got to Woodlawn Cemetery, the stranger fluttered a white handkerchief at him from inside the place. It was night. The handkerchief was a pre-arranged signal.

And then seeing "Jafsie" coming in his direction, the stranger stuck his hand through the gate,

"Who was that man?" Attorney-General David T. Wilentz asked.

"John," replied Condon.

"Who was John?"

"Bruno Richard Hauptmann!" replied Condon, his voice reverberating through the courtroom.

Hauptmann's pale face wore a serious look. He lowered his eyes.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, the murdered baby's father, sitting only a few seats from Hauptmann, listened attentively to "Jafsie's" testimony. Lindbergh was with

SAYS DEFENDANT THE MAN HE GAVE BOX OF MONEY

London the night "Jafsie" paid over the $50,000 in St. Raymond's cemetery.

The spectators thrilled to Condon's testimony. Except on a few occasions the crowded courtroom was extremely quiet. Men and women peered at Condon and drank in his every word.

It was warm and perspiration stood out in beads on the faces of everybody in the courtroom.

Condon appeared to be the calmest and coolest person in the courtroom. He was the essence of confidence when he left the stand at the luncheon recess when court was adjourned until 1:45 p. m.

Dr. Condon, 74 years old, gray-haired and ruddy-cheeked, was called at 10:30 a. m. He stood erect at the witness chair and swept the whole courtroom with a glance as he listened solemnly to the oath that was administered. Then he sat down.

Atty.-Gen. Wilentz began the questioning.

"How old are you?" was his first question.

"Seventy-four years old," replied Condon in a clear voice.

Wilentz wanted to know where during those years Condon had lived, and the Lindbergh intermediary replied:

"In the most beautiful borough in the world—the Bronx."

Defense Attorney Reilly asked that this remark be stricken from the record. He was over-ruled.

Q—You have lived your entire life in the greater city of New York? A—Yes.

Q—You are called doctor? A—Yes.

Q—What are your degrees?

Dr. Condon explained he has a Bachelor of Arts degree from City College of New York and a Master of Arts Degree.

Asked if he had always been a teacher, Dr. Condon replied:

"No. While I was in college, I was compelled to help my father, who had eight children, seven of whom became teachers in New York city.

"I said early that the burden was too great upon my father, and I became a telegraph operator. In November, 1888, I obtained my ambition and became a teacher."

Dr. Condon said he had been a teacher in New York 46 years.

On April 2, 1932, Condon said he went on an automobile ride with Colonel Lindbergh.

"Alfred J. Reich, my friend, was with us. It was about a quarter after 8," he related.

"We started on a trip according to directions given in a note."

The aged educator gave a minute, detailed description of his trip to St. Raymond's Cemetery the day the $50,000 ransom was paid.

"Did you have a box of money?" Wilentz asked.

"Yes. And Colonel Lindbergh had an additional bundle of money."

In the box were $50,000. In addition, Lindbergh had $20,000 with him.

Condon then told of giving the money to "John" and identified "John" as Hauptmann, the defendant sitting about 12 feet from him, looking very pale and a bit wan.

Q—By Wilentz. And did you give this money to someone? A—Yes.

Q—Who? A—"John."

Q—And who is "John"? A—"John" is Bruno Richard Hauptmann!

"Jafsie" spoke each word of Hauptmann's name clearly and emphatically.

Bruno Sneers at Charge

Hauptmann blinked and a half smile contemptuously curled about his lips.

The courtroom seethed with excitement.

Condon then began to identify the various ransom notes he received before the ransom was paid.

He put on a pair of horn-rimmed glasses and studied each note for at least a full minute before he identified it.

Justice Trenchard examined each note as soon as Condon had finished. Several were marked for identification.

Wilentz then took the first note Condon received and read it to the jury.

It was the letter in which the kidnaper instructed Condon how to construct the box for the ransom money and warned him against calling police.

It enclosed a letter to Colonel Lindbergh in which the kidnaper said he had agreed upon Condon as the intermediary.

First Ransom Note Read

Wilentz took the ransom notes to the jury box and read the four women and eight men the first communication Jafsie received from the kidnaper.

It read:

No. 8 (Dr. Condon asked to act as intermediary):

"Dear Sir: If you are willing to act as go-between in Lindbergh case please follow strictly instruction handed enclosed letter personally so Mr. Lindbergh. It will explain everything. Don't tell anyone about it as ten as we find out the press or police is notified everything are cancell and it will be a further delay. After you gett the money from Mr. Lindbergh put them three words the New-York American

Money is redy

"After that we will give you further instruction. Don't be afraid we are not out for your 10008 keep it only act strictly. Be at home every night between 6-12 by this time you will hear from us."

The note enclosed to Colonel Lindbergh, designating Condon as the intermediary in the negotiations, was read next. Wilentz carefully imitating by voice the bad spelling of the note.

Bad Spelling Is Imitated

That one read:

No. 5 (Acceptance of Dr. Condon as intermediary):

"Dear Sir: Mr. Condon may act as go-between. You may give him the 70000 $ make unexpecket this size will bee about (drawing of small box).

"We have notifyd you already in what kinds of bills we warn you not to set any trapp in any way. If you or someone else will notify the police there will be a further delay after we have the money in hand we will tell you where to find your hpy.

"You may have an aeriplane redy it is about 120 mil awy. But before telling you the add. A delay of 8 hours will be between."

Symbol on Ransom Note

Hauptmann continued to stare grimly at the witness stand as the ransom note was read.

He appeared crestfallen. He paid no attention to Wilentz as the letter was read.

Condon identified one ransom note as having been received on the night of "about March 9, 1932."

He identified it, he said, "by the peculiar symbol of three holes" as well as by its general appearance.

"I thought it strange," the aged grey man related, recalling the receipt of the first letter from the kidnaper designating him as the go-between.

"I felt rather pleased that I was so honored."

To open the ransom negotiations, Jafsie related how an advertisement was placed in the New York American.

"I accept money is ready. Jafsie," the notice read, as directed by the kidnaper.

The ransom notes he left with Colonel Lindbergh, he said, and returned to the Bronx.

Q—Did you get a response to your advertisement, A—I did. I received another letter. I received this letter by messenger at my front door.

That was the Saturday after the advertisement appeared.

"I went to Mr. Rosenheim's place and called its contents to a gentleman at the other end of the wire in Hopewell, New Jersey.

"And," he continued under questioning, "then I went to the home of Colonel Lindbergh at Hopewell."

Dr. Condon said he did not use the telephone in his own home to call Colonel Lindbergh, because:

"I never use my telephone for anything that will annoy my family."

Condon said he drove to Hopewell that night as the result of his conversation.

Jafsie Slept in Nursery

"Where did you sleep at Hopewell that night?" Wilentz asked.

Condon electrified the courtroom when he replied, in a dramatic tone:

"I slept in the baby's nursery."

Q—Who prepared that room? A—Colonel Lindbergh.

Condon's disclosure of his quarters in the Lindbergh home was accompanied by a slight "ah" that seemed to undulate over the packed court.

He said it melodramatically, with a little gesture of the hands and a quiver in his voice.

Wilentz repeated: "So you slept in the nursery."

"Yes."

Condon testified that after his conversation with Lindbergh and Colonel Breckenridge, he returned to New York and inserted an advertisement in the New York American. Wilentz showed him a newspaper containing a classified ad saying:

Identifies Ad in N. Y. American

"I accept, money is ready, Jafsie."

Condon identified that as the "ad" he had inserted.

Condon said he was accompanied by Breckenridge on the trip back to New York.

He said he made a lecture in the Bronx that night.

He then told of receiving a letter in answer to the advertisement. Wilentz handed him a yellowed letter.

Condon scrutinized it closely and said:

"I received this letter by messenger on the Saturday after inserting the ad. I remember all things by connection and relation. I teach that way and that is the way I remember things."

Wilentz started to interrupt this answer but defense counsel insisted on letting Dr. Condon explain his system of remembering things.

Wilentz then read the letter which directed Condon to go to a deserted hot dog stand near the end of a Bronx subway line and instructed him to follow the directions in a note to be found under a rock there.

"Did you follow the instructions of that letter?" Wilentz asked.

"I did," Condon replied.

"I started out within about 15 minutes after the letter came, with Al Reich."

He said the note came at about 7:30 p. m.

Condon said he drove to the hot dog stand, and identified it from a picture Wilentz handed him.

The Bronx educator was looking over the faces in the courtroom with evident interest while Wilentz showed the picture to the jurors.

The jury watched the witness intently. There was no difficulty hearing him. Every word was clearly and crisply spoken.

Hauptmann's pale face took on a look of anxiety as the Condon testimony went on. His lawyers were deadly serious.

Found Note Under Stone

Condon went on with his narrative.

"I went to the hot dog stand and looked for a stone. I found the stone and there was a note under it."

Wilentz handed him another piece of crumpled paper.

Q—Is that the note? A—Yes. That is the note I found under the stone.

Wilentz read the note to the jury. It directed Dr. Condon to drive "100 feet beyond the last station" on the Jerome avenue subway line, where the last ransom note was found.

It read:

"Dear Sir: We trust you but we will not. come in your hans it is to danger even you can not know if police or secret service is watching you.

"Follow this instruction, take a car and drive to the last supway station from Jerome ave. line. 100 feet from the last station on the left seide is a empty frank-further stand with a big open porch around. You will find a notise in senter of the porch underneath a stone. This notise will tell you were to find us.

"Act accordingly.

"After 2-4 of a honer he on the place bring the mony with you."

Condon went on:

"I took that letter and read it. We went to the cemetery and I turned to Reich, who was in the car, and said:

"'I do not see anyone here.'

"We sat in the car for five minutes or so. We then crossed the street in the car, in accordance with the instructions in the note.

"We proceeded along the fence of Woodlawn Cemetary until we came to a triangular opening at the gate."

Wilentz stopped him to identify a picture.

"That is the exact way it looked the night I was there," "Jafsie" enunciated.

Wilentz stopped the old man in one of his bursts of loquacity.

The defense objected.

"Let him answer the question, please," Defense Counsel Fisher demanded.

"Answer, then," — Wilentz urged.

"Jafsie" went off on another verbal spree on his early training.

"Please don't mind my interrupting you, doctor," said Wilentz after halting him at one occasion.

"I'm delighted," chuckled the doctor.

The teacher insisted on telling "what I told Mr. Reich," only to be interrupted time after time by the prosecution and defense.

"I object to what he said at that time," Fisher would thunder.

"Now, just don't tell us what you said but only what you did," Wilentz gently cautioned.

Tells of Meeting in Cemetery

The prosecutor handled the venerable doctor with the patience he might employ with a child.

Condon would grin sheepishly after every technical error in his testimony.

Wilentz asked Condon how far he stopped the car from the cemetery gate, on Jerome avenue.

"About 80 feet," Condon replied. "I then got out of the car and walked into the area in front of the gate. I got out the letter and read it again, thinking I might attract attention.

"I saw a man walking on 233rd street in the distance but paid no attention to him. Presently I saw a man fluttering a white handkerchief inside the cemetery."

Q—Was this a result of something you said? A—Yes.

Q—Then what happened? A—The man inside walked to the gate and stuck his hands through.

Q—Who was that man? A—John.

Says Bruno Called Self Go-Between

Q—Who was John? A—Bruno Richard Hauptmann!

Q—What did Hauptmann say? A—He said "Have you gotta the money?"

Condon spoke the words in a guttural voice.

He said Hauptmann then sealed the gate, coming down on the same side of the fence with him.

Condon said Hauptmann then asked:

"Have you called the cops?"

"I said 'no'," Condon went on.

"'I gave you my word I wouldn't call them and I didn't.' Then Hauptmann started running toward 233d street. I started after him and shouted, 'Hey! Come on back. Don't be cowardly! Here I am a poor, old school teacher. You can't be afraid of me.'"

Q—What did you do then? A —I went on and caught him and led him back to the bench, and asked him to sit there as my guest. I told him never to run away again as long as he was my guest.

"He said 'it's too dangerous. Would I burn if the baby was dead or would I get 20 years?'

"He then exclaimed 'I am only go-between.' I told him he would not burn if he had nothing to do with it."

Condon then told how he produced some safety pins from the Lindbergh nursery and Condon identified them.

Q—Did you have the pins? A—Yes. I took them. I took them from Colonel Lindbergh's home. I took them sort of French leave.

"I said what would your mother say?" Condon related. He said. 'My mother wouldn't like it; she'd cry.'"

"I told him I would keep my word as a kidnaper the same as I would to a gentleman. I said I've got $1008. I'll give you that and go to Jersey and get the other money. You fail, I'll follow you to Australia. I want to put the baby in His mother's arms."

Asked John If He Was German

Relating his further conversation with the man at the cemetery, Condon said he said:

"Excuse, me, are you a German? and he said, 'No, a Scandinavian.'

"He said, 'We were prepared a year for this.'

"I said the inroads of pulmonary disease are apparent to you. Let me go and I'll get you some medicine. I'll go as a hostage anywhere.

(Editor's Note—Isadore Fisch, whom Hauptmann claims gave him the money, died later of tuberculosis in Germany.)

"I said I have some toys and I know three words the baby knows. They were Baby Lindbergh's toys. I said I would know the baby, please give me a chance. I'm one of the Colonel

'Justice' Sign

By Universal Service

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9—Authorities are investigating the source of a mysterious sign which appeared on a pillar of the Hunterdon County courthouse, where Bruno Richard Hauptmann is being tried for the murder of the Lindbergh baby. The sign said in huge letters:

"Justice for Hauptmann!"

'Jafsie' Aid Tells of Drive to Ransom Spot

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9 — Al Reich, the ex-prizefighter who was Dr. John F. ("Jafsie") Condon's aide and companion during the Lindbergh ransom negotiations, went back to the witness stand today to complete the account he played in the famous case.

Reich was questioned by Attorney-General Wilentz.

He started by telling of the night of April 2, 1932, when the ransom was paid.

He was at Jafsie's Bronx home, he related, with Colonel Lindbergh, Colonel Breckinridge, Ralph Hacker, Condon's son-in-law, Mrs. Condon, Mrs. Hacker.

He was asked if he drove the car to the ransom payment spot.

"Colonel Lindbergh drove the car," he said, explaining: "I suggested they use my car."

Reich told of the prepartaion of the $70,000 ransom money in the box, ordered by the kidnaper.

"I was there when it was packed. I helped bring it up that afternoon from the banker's home," he detailed, explaining the money was brought to Condon's in two packages, one of $50,000 and one of $20,000.

"That was the afternoon of the night of the final payoff."

Wilentz concluded direct examination of Reich with a short series of questions regarding the ransom payment.

Q—And you saw the $70,000? A—Yes, it was packed in a wooden box.

Q—And you were present at Dr. Condon's home when he and Colonel Lindbergh left to pay out the money? A—Yes.

Q—How long did you wait there? A—About a half-hour.

Q—Who was there? A—Besides myself, Mrs. Condon, Colonel Breckinridge and Mrs. Ralph Hacker.

Reich Lives on City Island

Wilentz then turned the witness over to Reilly for cross-examination.

"Are you Dr. Condon's bodyguard?" Reilly began.

"No, I just go with him."

Dr. Condon, studying Reilly closely, paid little heed to the witness.

Q—Have you any means of income other than as a referee? A—I own some real estate.

Reilly was told by the witness that Condon sometimes went to City Island.

"That's where I live," Reich explained.

Reich said he did not remember Dr. Condon going to City Island during ransom negotiations in March, 1932.

Reilly swung abruptly to the matter of the ransom payment.

Q—At whose suggestion was the $70,000 brought to Dr. Condon's house? A—Anything that was done at the time was done with the consent of Col. Lindbergh, Col. Breckinridge, and Dr. Condon.

Q—Did you hear Dr. Condon suggest it would be a good idea to have the money in the Bronx. A—No.

Q—Who knew the money was to be in the Bronx that night? A—Colonel Lindbergh, Colonel Breckinridge, Dr. Condon, and myself."

Q—So after the money was there in the Bronx, there came the instruction to pay the money in 30 minutes? A—Yes.

Police Knew of Payoff

Reich said the police knew the payoff was to be made but were not aware of at what place.

Reilly pressed Reich to explain why he did not follow the doctor and Lindbergh to protect them and why he did not take a more important role in the proceedings.

"I wasn't an executive in this. I was just a dot on the eye," the ex-pugilist replied and the court laughed heartily.

Dr. Condon was then called.

Today at the Trial

How Colonel Lindbergh has aged by time—and tragedy — is graphically shown. At top, the boyish, laughing pilot who jumped by parachute from a plane in 1926, and today, heavier and somber, as he appears at the trial of Hauptmann, accused as the murderer of the flier's first-born child.

"IF HAUPTMANN IS 'JOHN'---IT'S BAD"

'Jafsie' Has Day

By ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9—Jafsie is on the witness stand.

At last we see the man who has been the sensational and disputed figure of the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Jafsie, the go-between, Jafsie the man who paid the ransom money.

At last we hear Jafsie, the man who talked to the kidnaper at Woodlawn Cemetery.

In ten minutes, we know beyond any doubt that if the story of Dr. John F. Condon is true, Bruno Hauptmann is guilty and a ring of white faces settle down around him as he sits on the witness stand; faces white with excitement and concentration, trying to determine whether he is telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

'Jafsie All There Is To Case'

That's all there is to the Lindbergh case at this moment.

As the square old figure, in a well-worn blue suit, mounts to the witness stand, the courtroom gasps with excitement. Reporters hand are shaking. The mass of people, including Lindbergh and Hauptmann, still sitting only a few feet from each other, sways forward in a wave of breathless listening.

Will Jafsie identify Bruno Hauptmann as the man he called "John"? Will he say that Bruno Hauptmann was the man he talked to in the cemetery?

"And who was the man you call John?" says Attorney-General Wilentz in a tense, low voice.

"John was ——"

Theold man on the stand pauses. He turns in his chair, facing directly toward the defendant in this case, Bruno Hauptmann. When he speaks again, his voice is dramatic. It is an accusation, definite and filled with conviction.

"John is Bruno Richard Haiptman," he says.

He says something else that turns my hand cold. That brings me to my feet to stare at Bruno Hauptman, his leaden eyelids again ppon his gray-green cheeks.

Jafsie says that the man called John, sitting on a bench in or near Woodlawn Cemetery gave him safety pins and told him the baby was PINNED IN HIS CRIB WITH SAFETY PINS.

Then, if Dr. Condon is accurate, if he is to be believed, Bruno Hauptmann was in the Lindbergh nursery on March 1. Somebody else might have given him the sleeping suit. Somebody else might have given him the letters. Somebody else might have given him the money.

But, only the kidnaper himself would give that as a means of proving the baby had been taken from his crib by him—John said the baby was in pinned in his crib with safety pins.

JOHN WAS BRUNO HAUPTMANN?

Dr. John sits on the witness chair and my head aches with the strain of trying to know, to KNOW what kind of a man he is.

Around him, like heavy clouds, are the wild and fantastic tales we have heard about him. Humming behind his words are all the tales we have been told, the endless rumors that have gone around about him since first he entered the case as go-between.

Reilly indicates him as the"master mind."

Vindication Or Defeat

He has been called a busy body, he has been called a queer old man. He knows it—and we know it.

Now is his great moment—of vindication or defeat.

THERE HE IS.

He is pompous, He is long longwinded. He has been used to talking from lecture platforms, and he has the style and mannerisms of the lecturer, who must fill up an hour and who knows people will sit and listen.

He has been accustomed for nearly fifty years to talking to school children in close rooms.

His hair is slate gray and his face is rosy and sometimes he twinkles, and then he looks a little like Santa Claus.

His moustache is whiter than his hair and he uses a great many gestures. Good gestures.

It is an odd coincidence that he looks very like Judge Trenchard, who sits parallel with him and only a few feet away. In fact, you could shift them on the seats and on one would notice it for a few moments.

He has an old man's slight irritability and he makes quite a theatrical affair of the fact that he has never testified in court before and that he wishes to conform to the rules of evidence. He does it beautifully.

A bit of an actor, unquestionably.

On that bench on that night with Bruno Hauptmann, he was the school teacher, he was the old man who wants to lead every one into right paths, the old man who wants to reform folks—and maybe get credit for it.

He talked to Hauptmann about his mother.

"What would your mother think of you?"

He begged him to give up his career as a kidnaper, to abandon his life of crime, to go straight. He has lived seventy four years and fifty of those years have been spent in telling other people what to do and what to think and how to live.

After listening to his story, I can only tell you what I think.

I think Jafsie is a slightly egotistical, pompous old gentleman, who could be an awful bore, think to those of us a accustomed to tense words and short speech he is wordy and tiresome.

BUT, I believe him. I believed every word he said.

Makes His Story Dramatic

I think he is very conscious of his position, that this is a great moment in his life and that he knows how dramatic is the story he has to tell. And he makes it as dramatic as possible.

But I think it is a true story and I do not believe this old gentleman, who has lived all his life in one community, who has taught in New York schools of his life, who has been lecturing four and five times a day on reform topics for 20 years, who looks like a nice old Santa Claus, suddenly went haywire at 74.

'Jafsie' Comes Through! Makes 'Hit' on Stand

By MARGARET GARRAHAN

(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

Courthouse, Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9—A great big little boy is sitting in the witness chair here today and a spectacular audience is sitting spellbound.

Jafsie is the biggest thing in this trial. He's what they've all been waiting for. Everybody's been wondering if he would actually come. Conjecture has been running high as to what he would finally say.

And now he's saying it.

"'John' is—with a burning glance at Attorney-General David T. Wilentz and a glare at the defendant—'Bruno Richard Hauptmann!'"

Jafsie has come through. There is a wave of movement through the courtroom. Bulletins flash past the messenger grapevine to the sides of telegraphers. Reporters jump up, run out. Spectators murmur, the murmur becomes a roar. Pandemonium reigns for a moment—then silence.

Skillful as is Wilentz's questioning of his witness, Jafsie is keeping him on his toes. He has a habit of running off into a half dozen answers, or injecting a bit of homely philosophy or appreciation to a question. Then, when Wilentz catches up with him:

"Did I make a mistake?" or, "I'm very sorry—it's my first time on the witness stand."

"May I put a little phrase in here?" he'll ask Wilentz.

He's always cut off. But it doesn't keep him down.

He is 74, with grey hair and a small grey moustache. His face is florid and his eyes, darkly deep-set, twinkle.

The judge is listening intently. The jury is listening as one man, leaning forward, discussing this point or that, smiling with him, waiting for his next words.

Everybody in this room is listening.

Jafsie is a hit.

Tells of Cough

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9 (INS)—Isador Fisch, from whom Bruno Richard Halptmann contends he received the Lindbergh ransom money, died March 29, 1934, at Leipsig, Germany. A doctor said the cause was tuberculosis.

Dr. John F. Condon, testifying today regarding his ransom negotiations in a Bronx cemetery with one "John" whom he identified as Hauptmann, said:

"He coughed."

"The inroads ofpulmonary disease seem to start."

There has been no indication of unwonted caughing by Hauptmann.

Rush Seat Line Shooed From Chill by 'Tickets'

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9—There was a duel of attraction against deterrent—Dr. John F. Condon vs. fog and chill weather—for the spectators at the Hauptmann trial today, but the attraction was stronger.

Interest was heightened by the appearance of the state's star witness, "Jafsie," rather than lessened by the adverse weather in the Raritan valley.

The first "early bird" was the earliest yet, arriving 40 minutes after midnight to await admission.

So early did visitors come that Deputy Sheriff John Davenport, elderly, mustached and kindly, devised a new treatment for those who arrived before daylight to form in line for the "rush" seats.

After letting the early comers wait outside the courthouse door an hour or so, Davenport shooed them across the street to the shelter of the Union Hotel, rewarding them with slips of identifying paper for admission to the courtroom.

Trial 'Style'

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9—A new style note was added today to what the well dressed Hauptmann trial spectator will wear. A middle-aged man arrived, attired jauntily in a well mellowed straw hat and a long ulster.

"JAFSIE IS MISTAKEN," SAYS HAUPTMANN

Worried by Charges

CALM AS AGED EDUCATOR CALLS HIM 'JOHN'

Mrs. Lindbergh I'd bring the baby back.

"John said, 'Nobody else can get the baby but you and you can trust the baby's arms around the neck of Mrs. Lindbergh.'"

"Baby Alive"

"John" Declared

Condon quoted the man in the cemetery as saying:

"I'll prove to you we're the right party. I'll send you the baby's sleeping suit. I've waited been too long now already. I must have."

Condon said they then shook hands and that Hauptmann left him.

Condon said Hauptmann, after getting the baby might be dead, repeatedly declared:

"The baby is all right. The baby is all right."

"When did you next hear from Hauptmann?" Wilentz asked.

"It was on a Wednesday."

Wilentz handed Condon a signed envelope and asked him to identify Condon said:

"The baby's sleeping suit and two letters came in that envelope."

Q—Who was there when it arrived. A—Colonel Breckenridge was there.

A ten minute recess was called at this point.

Condon went out of the courtroom during the recess. Observers were surprised at the coolness of the 74-year-old witness and prompted defense counsel Reilly would

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH, JR. ...ve a Tartar on his hands when ...ss-examination starts.

"Mistaken," Says Bruno

Hauptmann, who appeared for the first time since the start of the trial to be a very worried man, talked with his wife during the recess.

Asked concerning Condon's identification of him, Hauptmann said: "He's mistaken. Now, no more talking about that."

The recess ended at 11:05 a. m. and Dr. Condon went back on the stand. Wilentz asked him to tell of receiving the envelope containing the sleeping suit.

"I opened the envelope," Condon said. "Colonel Lindbergh and Colonel Breckenridge were there."

Colonel Lindbergh showed interest and unvarying interest in Dr. Condon's testimony. He leaned forward in his chair, noting every word of the educator's story. He smiled several times at the witness, a distinction that he reserved for few before the tragedy overwhelmed him, and for fewer since.

Note Promised to Produce Baby

Wilentz then read a note, which Condon said accompanied the sleeping suit, to the jury. The note complained:

"Our man failed to collect the parody."

It went on to ask if the $70,000 ransom could be delivered after receipt of the sleeping suit.

The note promised that directions for finding the baby alive would be sent eight hours after payment of the ransom money.

Q—After you received the note, did you cause an ad to be inserted as directed. A—Immediately on getting that suit, I called Colonel Lindbergh and showed him the sleeping suit. After he identified it, I inserted the advertisement. I first asked Colonel Lindbergh if he thought it was making any mistake. He said 'No.'

The advertisement was then shown Dr. Condon and he identified it. It was read:

"I accept. Money is ready. You know I won't deliver without getting the package. Come, you know you can trust Jafsie."

Wilentz gave Condon another letter to identify. Condon said:

"That is the letter I received by mail at home after the advertisement was inserted."

The letter was admitted as evidence.

Every time he identified one of the letters Dr. Condon took his glasses from an inside pocket, read carefully, then put the glasses back.

Threats in Letter Bared

Wilentz then read the letter to the jury. It began:

"Dear sir. You and Mr. Lindbergh know 'over' program. If you do not agree 'den' you will have to accept to our program.

"We know you have to come to us anyway but why should Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh suffer longer as is necessary.

"We tell you again this kidnapping police was prepared a year or more again.

"Did you send Mr. Lindbergh that package? It containing the sleeping suit of the baby. Mr. Lindbergh only wasting time in his search."

The letter was threatening in tone and urged speed in meeting the kidnapers' demands.

Dr. Condon then identified another envelope, post-marked "March 29, 1932, New York."

"The stains were not on it, but I received the letter," Condon said precisely.

The note inside the envelope was given to Condon, who studied it a long time.

The paper was crumpled and almost completely black. Condon finally identified it after saying the black stain, apparently the result of some sort of chemical, was not there when he received it.

Wilentz assured defense counsel the state would account for how stains were put on the note. He then read the note to the jury. It threatened:

"If the deal is not closed until the eighth of April we will ask for $50,000 more. We will ask not $70,000 but $100,000."

The note again assured Condon the child "absolute was well" and urged "Mr. Lindbergh to stop chasing clues."

"We will keep the child on an safe place until we have the money in hand," one part of the note said. "How can Mr. Lindbergh doubt us, when our same signature is on the ransom note?"

Money Ready For Delivery

Wilentz then introduced still another note—blackened, like the others, by the acida that had been used in efforts of chemists to trace its source.

Condon identified this note which was dated April 1, 1932.

It said, in part:

"Have the money ready Saturday."

It gave emphatic warnings against any traps and said to have the money in a box. It also ordered Condon to insert an ad in the New York American or the New York Journal if he was "ready for business Saturday."

He said he put the ad in the paper Saturday, April 2.

Q—Did you have the money ready that day. A—Yes. Colonel Lindbergh and Colonel Breckenridge were there.

Dr. Condon then identified still another note as one delivered at his home that Saturday, April 2, 1932.

"Do you know who delivered it?" Wilentz asked.

"A messenger."

The note instructed Condon to take a car and follow Tremont avenue to a table outside a nursery. There, the note said:

"You will find a letter. Read and follow instructions. We will give you ¾ hour to reach the place."

The note said to have the money ready and not to call police, warning "we have the same equipment."

Dr. Condon said he followed the instructions.

"There was a table outside the greenhouse," Condon said. "I found a note under a brick and picked it up."

"Is this the note?" Wilentz asked, holding up a piece of paper.

"That is the note."

Wilentz read this note to the jury. It said:

"Cross the street. Walk to the next corner and following Whittemore avenue to the sound. Take the money with you, come and I will meet you."

Court was adjourned at 12:32 p. m. until 1:45 p. m.

When court reconvened Condon resumed the stand, bowing to the judge and jury.

Attorney General Wilentz resumed questioning Condon. Wilentz asked what Condon did after picking up the note at the greenhouse the day the ransom was paid—April 2, 1932.

"I walked back to the car where Colonel Lindbergh was seated," Condon said

The Bronx educator then told how he showed the note to Colonel Lindbergh.

"I then followed the directions of the note," Condon said. "I walked on down the street."

On the corner there was a man and a little girl from whom he inquired for Whittemore avenue. He then saw a street sign saying Whittemore avenue.

Hears Call, "Hey Doctor"

"I then walked on down to the easterly side of the cemetery," said Dr. Condon. "I walked 100 yards past a gate to the linking of the Whittemore and Tremont avenues.

"I stood there and said, 'There does not seem to be anybody here.'

"I went to turn away and someone said in a very loud, clear tone:

"'Hey, doctor, come here.' I followed the voice and it repeated in a lower tone: 'Over here.'"

Condon said it was dark and he walked "extremely cautiously."

He was walking down Whittemore avenue, with St. Raymond's Cemetery on his left.

He described how the street looked. He gave explicit details and measurements of distances.

Condon testified the man who called "Hey, doctor!" to him that night in the cemetery asked him if he had brought the money with him.

"I said, 'No, it's up there in the car,'" said the witness.

Then, according to Condon, "John" asked:

"Who's up there?"

Continuing, the witness said: "I said, 'Colonel Lindbergh.' He asked if Lindbergh was armed.

I said, 'No.' He said: 'Give me the money.' I said, 'Not until I get a receipt showing where the baby is.' I told him, 'Colonel Lindbergh is not so rich. These are depression times.'

"He said, 'All right, I'll take

The word "signature" in this Lindbergh ransom note is spelled as if the first four letters were "S-I-N-G"—and those four latters, prosecuting attorneys say, may send Bruno Richard Hauptmann to the electric chair. They claim that after his arrest, Hauptmann was asked to write the word. He did so, repeatedly. And time after time, it is alleged, he spellled it "S-I-N-G-n-a-t-u-r-e." The note, shown in facsimile above, reads: "Dear Sir: Have 5000$ ready 2500$ in 20$ bills 1500$ in 10 bills after 2-4 days we will inform you were to deliver the mony. $50,000 instead of $70,00.' We then agreed that I should get the money and he would give me the note telling where the baby was'

Condon then related how he went to where Colonel Lindbergh was waiting in the automobile. He told how Colonel Lindbergh took $20,000 out of the ransom box.

Condon then took the remaining $50,000 back to the cemetery entrance, where, he said, he found "John" crouching under the bridge.

"I told him to stand up and look at me and give me the note."

Condon's expression was fierce as he pointed and gestured with his left hand.

Condon quoted "John" as saying: "Wait a minute."

'Crowd Thinks Work Perfect'

Condon continued:

"John then demanded to see the money. He looked and he said—'All of them said your work is perfect. The truth to the kidnapers is the same as the truth as to a judge.'

"Then he demanded: 'If the money marked?' I said, 'I don't know.' He repeated, 'The crowd thinks your work is perfect.'

"I said, 'All right, John, but I must find the baby. If I don't I will follow you to Australia.'

"He reached his hand through the hedge after giving me the note and said, 'Good-bye.'"

Again Wilentz hammered home the point:

Decribes Hop Over Gay Head

"And this man was John?"

"Yes!" replied Condon.

Q—And who is John? A.—John is Bruno Rudolph, er Richard—Hauptmann!

It was the third time Cosdon had identified Hauptmann as the ransom receiver.

Condon revealed for the first time that Lindbergh did not open the envelope of the ransom note immediately, but waited until they had left the scene.

The note instructed them to fly over Gay Head, Mass., where the baby would be on the boat, "Nellie," with two women who, "John" said were "innocent."

Condon then told of the preparation to fly over the indicated route.

"We went to Bridgeport, Ct.," the witness said. "Colonel Lindbergh was driving. We arrived about 5 o'clock in the morning.

"When it was light we went in an airplane to th evicinity of Gay Head."

"Who piloted the airplane?"

Colonel Charles E. Lindbergh."

Condon said he, Colonel Breckenridge and a federal agent were in the plane with Lindbergh.

'Did you find the boat?" demanded Wilentz.

"No!"

"Did you find the baby?"

"No!"

CHANGE In New Deal STARTS

FIRST STEP IS PENSION

By Associated Press

Washington, Jan. 9 — An atmosphere of change surrounded Wa s h ington today as the New Deal found itself in its long-heralded period of transition.

First off, there came a new tip about the vastly-altered attack on relief.

An authoritative source said the administration was thinking of urging that a federal-state system of pensions for old people and needy mothers be set up almost immediately so payments could start quickly.

This was described as an attempt to take care of many of the 3,500,000 "unemployables" the government is seeking to remove from its relief rolls to the care of the states. Hitherto, many observers have regarded such pensions as a plan for the more distant future.

Large, joint contributions by the federal government and the states would be necessary if pensions were to start quickly under this plan.

NRA came to the parting of the ways between old and new. Two hundred business men and code officials gathered for hearings on the Blue Eagle's major problems, with price fixing definitely under fire.

The farm administration, too, was looking into the future in an attempt to prepare for it. Because he regards the system of collecting processing taxes to pay farmers to control production as only an "emergency" measure, Secretary Wallace and his assistants were studying possible alternatives.

STUDENT FREED BY KIDNAP TRIO

By Associated Press

Chicago, Jan. 9—Allen C. Bomberger, 21, college student from Hammond, Ind., was released early today by a trio of kidnapers who forced him, he told police, to write a ransom note to his father demanding $50,000.

The youth reported to police shortly after he was tossed from an auto near the Federal building, and said he had been released, after more than 48 hours in captivity.

He said he thought his father, Attorney Lowden Bomberger, met the ransom demand. Members of his family, however, and Harold Nathan, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, denied that any payment had been made.

Young Bomberger was seized last Sunday night in Crawfordsville, Ind., where he attends Wabash college.

Young Bomber said there were two men and a woman in the gang and that he would be able to identify one of the men.

Mlle. Renee Nizan, French pianist, will take part in one of the recitals.

Fr. McHugh Lies In State, B. C. Makes Last Tribute

Beneath the spires of the college he had helped to build, the body of the Reverend Patrick J. McHugh, S. J., dean of Boston College, lay in state today, while sorrowing students and alumni came to pay tribute.

Tonight a guard of honor, composed of alumni, will stand vigil at the bier in St. Ignatius Chapel, while men and women from all walks of life come to kneel a moment and pray.

Father McHugh, who passed away in his sleep from a heart attack yesterday, will be buried tomorrow morning from the Church of the Immaculate Conception after other memorial services have been held at the college chapel.

At the Immaculate Conception Church, which is attached to Boston College high school, the solemn office of the dead will be read by the Jesuit clergymen associates of the late dean.

The funeral mass will be sung by the Very Reverend Louis J. Gallagher, S.J., president of Boston College. Burial will be in the Jesuit cemetery at Holy Cross College in Worcester.

Father McHugh, acclaimed as one of the most brilliant educators of his generation, had been dean of Boston College since he was 35 years old.

Drowning Victim

The body of an unidentified man about 23 years old was found today in the water off Mile road, South Boston.

NAZI RIOT IN SAAR IS SQUELCHED

By Associated Press

Saarbruecken, Saar Basin Territory, Jan. 9—A battle between Nazis and anti-Nazis broke out at noon today in Waterloo street, but was quickly suppressed by overwhelming forces of police.

The section where the turmoil reigned is one of the city's better residence districts and the Nazi German front headquarters are located on Waterloo street.

It was a Waterloo for both sides for Major Hennessey, chief of the Saar civil police, personally led the forces of law and order into the fray and squelched the combat before it could develop beyond the fisticuffs, club and kicking stage.

The riot started when a detachment of adherents to the proposals that the Saar basin territory should stay under the League of Nations raided Waterloo street.

SIX SLAIN BY FUGITIVE; 2 OTHERS DYING

GANGSTER SHOT DOWN BY U. S.

By Associated Press

Chicago, Jan. 9—Federal agents have struck with deadly accuracy again in their war on crime—this time to kill Russell Gibson, 32-year-old suspect in the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker.

Trapped in a northside apartment last night, Gibson, an ex-convict, and reputed member of the abduction gang of Alvin Karpis and Arthur Barker, attempted to shoot it out with a picked squad of 16 agents, but his machine gun jammed, and he fell mortally wounded.

Two bullets from the quick-firing rifles of the federal men hit their mark and one of them found a fatal spot despite the fact that Gibson, who was also known as "Slim" Gray, was wearing a "bullet-proof" vest. The bullet penetrated the vest. Gibson died in a hospital early today.

Gibson had attempted to flee out of the back door of a Pine Grove avenue apartment not far from the spot where John Dillinger was shot and killed last July 22.

Meanwhile the agents had flooded the apartment with tear gas, forcing the surrender of a man and a woman. The latter identified herself as Mrs. Clara Gibson, widow of the slain gangster. The identity of the man was not disclosed.

Yawns Stamp Jurywoman at Hauptmann Trial

By MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9—Behold Mrs. Verna Snyder, seated in chair No. 3 in the Hauptmann jury box—yawning.

That's how she regards the dramatic murder trial at times, especially when the attorneys begin to argue over such legal technicalities as admissibility of the kidnap ladder.

Her stout legs swing in unison and sometimes her fingers drum on the chair arm. One sees Mrs. Snyder, who weighs 250, also nodding her head.

She is as puzzling as the Lindbergh case itself. She sits through oppressive heat with her beige coat on, its striped flat fur lying about her neck. But at dinner, in the Union Hotel's cooler dining room, she is seen coatless, in a handsome black dress.

As the trial progresses, this jury's characteristic attitudes are stamping themselves on the public mind. The people who finally get in remember Mrs. Rosie Pill in her poppy-painted dress, and Mrs. Mary Breisford, the former lodge matron, sitting under the American flag.

Three others who seem to take the duty gravely are Mrs. Ethel Stockton, the youngest woman on the jury, who has followed the testimony with unwavering attention; Charles Walton, Sr., the gray-haired jury foreman, and George Voorhees, a Clinton Township farmer, who has an open, serious face.

Eleven of the 12 jurors are parents, and a few are grand-parents.

6 EXPERTS TO SAY FISCH WROTE NOTES

By International News Service

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9—Six handwriting experts, headed by a German specialist, will testify in behalf of Bruno Richard Hauptmann that Isidor Fisch penned the ransom notes, it was learned today.

The experts hired by the Bronx carpenter's attorneys to refute New Jersey's claim that Hauptmann's handwriting appears in the notes are working on the theory that the writer of a ransom communication makes a deliberate effort to conceal his regular penmanship.

While admitting a "slight resemblance" between Hauptmann's writing and that which appears in the ransom notes, the defense experts will offer documentary evidence in large quantities alleging to prove that Fisch's writing contains more basic characteristics.

Edward J. Reilly, defense chief, in cross-examining handwriting men for the state, will strive to obtain the admission that in all cases of threatening letter-writing the culprit camouflages his style.

Hauptmann's handwriting battery will seek to demonstrate to the court that all Germans write in much the same manner and two of them propose to imitate the defendant's writing so adroitly that Reilly will defy the state experts to separate the forgery from the genuine.

KILL THAT COLD

Give It No Chance to Survive Thru the Use of Half-way Measures!

Treat a cold to kill it, not to coddle it!

Many a cold lightly treated turns into something worse.

Hit a cold "where it lives"—in the system! That means to take an internal treatment.

Hit it with a cold medicine, not with a preparation good for all kinds of ailments.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment you want.

First of all, it is a cold tablet, made expressly for colds.

Second, it is internal medication and of fourfold effect.

Here's what it does:

First, it opens the bowels, an advisable step in the treatment of a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

That's the treatment a cold calls for and anything less may be exposing you to serious complications.

Adopt the course of wisdom. When a cold threatens, waste no time with makeshift remedies, but go at once to your druggist for a package of Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets immediately, two at a time, every four hours.

Used in time, Bromo Quinine tablets will stop a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed of action you want.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. Every drug store sells Bromo Quinine at small cost. Be sure you get what you ask for.

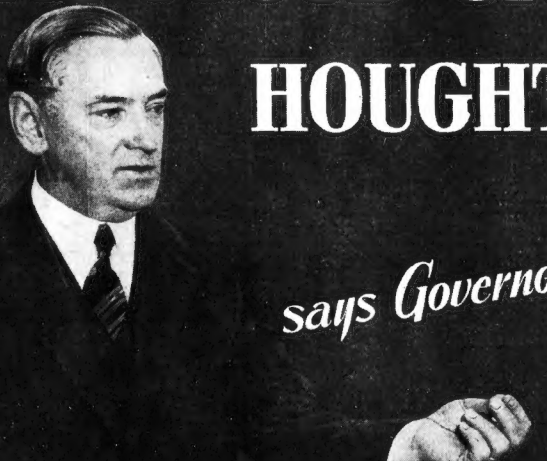
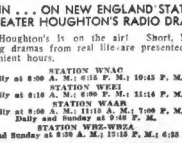
"I'M PROUD OF HOUGHTON'S" says Governor Curley



"YOUR 'PAY CASH—PAY LESS' POLICY CANNOT BUT HELP SPEED THE RETURN OF WORK AND WAGES TO THE PEOPLE OF NEW ENGLAND!"

Inspiring words like these, from such a champion of the people as Governor Curley, indicate more strongly than a thousand words and pictures this great truth: That in giving Boston a store whose policy is "Pay Cash—Pay Less," Greater Houghton's is also champion in the cause of the wage-earner and the man of modest salary who, instead of running up bills and mortgaging his future income, is doing his humble best to pay his own way back to prosperity.



In this great store of ours, we have done a remarkable thing—a thing which many merchants and manufacturers told us was "impossible." By the elimination of charge accounts—by frequent cash purchases of vast quantities of high quality merchandise—by selling entirely for cash and offering our patrons the double discount of Legal Stamps,—Greater Houghton's is offering to the women of New England, day in and day out, lower prices and better values in greater savings, than people thought possible, even in times like these. We are leaving no stone unturned, nothing undone to co-operate with the vast majority of Boston and New England families who even under the pressure of curtailed income, have done their best to keep their budgets balanced.

We congratulate you and thank you, Governor Curley! We believe we will prove to New England women what Governor Curley believes: That it pays to "Pay Cash—Pay Less"—at Greater Houghton's.

WHEN YOU "PAY CASH-PAY LESS" AT HOUGHTON'S YOU SAVE MONEY THESE 3 WAYS!

1 You pay lower cash prices than if we continued to maintain charge accounts.

2 Legal Stamps, given with every purchase of ten cents or more, give you an added extra discount whenever you shop at Houghton's.

3 The fact that we ourselves can frequently purchase, for cash, large quantities of high-quality merchandise, enables us, day in and day out, to give you greater values than ever before in our history.

4 SLUG GUARDS IN PRISON BREAK

Use Wooden Guns

der; Joseph W. Levesque, 36, Newport, R. I., serving 20 years for assault with intent to rob; Lawrence H. Boldway, Warehouse Point, Conn., serving 20 years for assault and robbery, and William "Tootsie" Baker, 19, Springfield, serving 20 years for assault with intent to kill.

The break was made about 3 o'clock from the Cherry Hill cell block where the most desperate prisoners are confined.

Warden Amazed

Warden James L. Hogsett and the state commissioner of correction characterized it as the most ingenious attempt ever made at the prison.

WILLIAM H. FREEMAN

They were convinced, they said, that none beside the four was involved in the plot. They were both baffled and amazed by the weapons used in the escape and the manner in which they had been meticulously in readiness for the escape.

These included the three wooden guns, a key fashioned of galvanized iron and lead, a short steel bar ripped from the inside of a cell, two 15-foot lengths of bedpiping stolen from the machine shop, 30 feet of rope and a short plank walk stolen from a shower room.

The guns put to oshame the broom handle weapon used by John Dillinger in his escape from jail at Crown Point, Ind. Two were carved of wood to an almost exact semblance of automatic pistols. They were painted black and the top of the barrels was left white to give a highlight shine.

The third was revolver shape with a lead and iron barrel, and into holes in the fake cylinder chamber had been inserted four pieces of tin foil from cigarette packs to resemble the end of steel-jacketed bullets.

Lead had been sunk in each wooden butt to weight the weapon for clubbing. On one was scrawled, "Manufactured by L. H. Boldway," Warden Hogsett said he was convinced Boldway, a master mechanic in the machine shop, fashioned all three and also the key.

The two guards were in the office of the cell block when Zakrzewski and Levesque broke from the cell they occupied with a third unidentified prisoner who refused to accompany them.

They ripped a lever bar from the top of their cell door, unlocked the door with their fake key and each with a wooden gun crept down the corridor to the office where they attacked the guards.

Fires 6 Shots

Freeman put up a terrific struggle and before he was felled by head wounds that required 20 stitches, he had his gun out and fired six shots, none of which took effect. Witham was taken unaware and dropped without a struggle.

The convict pair then raced 40 feet to the cell of Boldway and Baker, ripped two padlocks from it with their iron bars and freed them.

Despite the gunfire in the block, a sentry outside did not hear it and the other prisoners, if they were aroused, made no outcry.

The quartet went to the second tier of cells, placed the plank walk from the shower room on top of steam pipes and using it as a ladder scrambled to a skylight. They pulled themselves to the roof, lowered themselves down outside on the rope.

Sounds Alarm

Meanwhile, James H. Lindsey, patrol officer, had peered through the office window, seen the unconscious guards and sounded the alarm. Fifty police were at the prison within a few minutes, including a special squad from Charlestown and crews of all radio patrol cars.

Zakrzewski and Levesque were taken as they climbed on top of the outer wall overlooking the railroad yards, utilizing the bent bars at the rope end for grapples to catch on the wall top.

For several hours afterward it was believed that Boldway and Baker had escaped. They were found hiding behind two bales of cotton in the small laundry building a short distance from the cell block. Warden Hogsett said they were not seriously injured by their captors.

17 BURNED In Truck Blast

Hudsonville, Mich., Jan. 9 (AP)—Seventeen persons were burned, some so seriously they may die, when a motor transport loaded with paint exploded on the highway between here and Zeeling today, showering the driver and spectators with flaming liquid.

Wooden Guns Win First—Lose Last!

This hook, improvised out of pipe stolen from the state prison machine shop, was to be used as a grappling iron by which four convicts, attempting escape, might haul themselves to the top of the prison wall. It didn't work as well as was planned. It is held by Guard Charles A. Slocum. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

ARTHUR T. LYMAN JAMES L. HOGSETT

Guns? They look like 'em. But they're wood. Only good as threats, but plenty good for that purpose. Arthur T. Lyman, commissioner of correction, and Warden James L. Hogsett of state prison are demonstrating how the fake weapons were used by four convicts attempting escape today.

Hungry Suspect

Peter Murphy, of Dorchester was so hungry that he collapsed in the Fields Corner police station today after he was arrested as a bag-snatcher.

The man, was apprehended by a patrolman at Gallivan boulevard and Minot street, after a woman had trailed him.

She said she had seen Murphy snatch a hand-bag from Mrs. Theresa Wright, of 24 Saranac street, Dorchester.

He denied the charge.

Dr. Rose C. Munroe of 322 Hyde Park avenue also suffered painful bites and scratches.

Speer Verdict Cites Unknown

Still Mystery

SLAYER HID IN SHADOWS

Greenfield, Jan. 9 — The murder of Dr. Elliot Speer, headmaster of the Mount Hermon School, in his study on Sept. 14, remained as much a mystery as ever today when Judge Timothy M. Hayes, reporting on his inquest, announced that the crime had been committed "by a person unknown."

State police will continue investigation.

Judge Hayes used 2500 words to reach his conclusion, going into details about every bit of evidence unearthed in the mysterious shooting on that foggy September night.

Judge Hayes came to the conclusion that the headmaster had been killed by five slugs from a 12-guage shotgun, either single or double-barreled, but was forced to admit that the weapon had never been found.

He also concluded that the murderer had not risked detection, but had concealed himself in the shadows outside Dr. Speer's study window, 19 feet away, through which he fired the fatal charge.

The educator had managed to stagger across the room and ask for a doctor and a tourniquet, according to the findings, but he died "without furnishing any information whatsoever as to the manner of the shooting or the person who fired the shot."

The evidence proved that the Speer family had been happy one, according to the judge, and that Dr. Speer had been well liked by all of the teachers and employes of the school.

In bringing to a conclusion—for the present, at least—the months of investigation by state detectives, the judge pointed out that the law made it impossible for him to return a finding of "probable guilt."

TIME To End CRIME

CRIMINAL CAN BE ROUTED

By HERBERT R. O'CONOR
Attorney-General of Maryland

As prosecuting attorney of Baltimore City for eleven years, Mr. O'Conor conducted many cases of national interest, including prosecution of "Candy Kid" Whittemore and "Will-o-the-Wisp" Niemoth, both listed as public enemies.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 9—The time has come when the American public must settle for themselves, and in their own interest, the crime problem which has baffled the United States during past years.

It is a foregone conclusion that if the people of the country manifest a sufficient interest in this question, which is of paramount importance to everyone, a satisfactory solution will be evolved.

If the public will eliminate corrupt or inefficient public officials and supplant them with men who will conscientiously and vigorously tackle this problem, a major stroke will have been made in the effort to reduce lawlessness.

Public Aid Needed

Coincident with this step, the public must maintain an active interest in the effort to suppress crime by staunchly supporting needed reforms in criminal law and procedure, and in opposing, just as strenuously, some of the theoretical and untimely suggestions which are constantly being put forward, but which have no merit.

The third avenue through which the public can render undoubted service to themselves is by constantly upholding the hands of those officials who are insistent upon having the laws obeyed.

From an experience of 11 years as the prosecuting attorney of Baltimore city, I assert that the criminal or aggregations of criminals can be ferreted out and can be handled by the agencies of government if there is, on the part of responsible officials, the will to do it.

Those who have elected to pursue a course of crime through life, even though possessed of mental equipment and abilities to succeed in legitimate business, must be made to realize that the law is as resourceful and efficient as need be to uphold its majesty and dignity.

The recently enacted congressional act making it possible for the several states to enter into compacts among themselves enables states to make a joint effort to eradicate the criminal element, which was not possible in former years.

Carnegie's Millions Vs. U. S. Independence

CONGRESS comes and Congress goes, but League Court propaganda goes on forever.

It is kept going by the millions of dollars furnished by various organizations, chief among which is the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

During the last 15 years the propaganda division of that endowment has spent approximately SEVEN MILLION DOLLARS to create in America AN INTERNATIONAL MIND.

In 1929 it helped to finance the Elihu Root mission to the League of Nations seat at Geneva, where the League Court formula for American membership was devised.

The purpose is to make Americans INTERNATIONALLY MINDED and thereby less AMERICAN MINDED.

Peace is merely the bait on the internationalist's hook.

The hook is the League Court and once on that we would be quickly landed in the League of Nations' net.

There was no League of Nations in 1910 when the endowment was founded. But Carnegie's hope was shown plainly in the following statement printed on Page 282 of his "Autobiography of Andrew Carnegie":

"Let men say what they will, I say that as surely as the sun in the heavens once shone upon Britain and America united, so surely it is one morning to rise, shine upon and greet again the reunited states—The British-American union."

In token of his desire the flag that Carnegie flew over his home in Scotland—the native land to which he retired after amassing his millions in America—was the British banner and the American flag, sewed together.

Andrew Carnegie sought to join what George Washington had put asunder.

But Carnegie not only hoped to see America and Britain united under one flag, and presumably under one throne. He regretted that they were ever parted.

Addressing the Senate foreign relations committee at the anti-League Court hearings last May, Ex-Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, said:

"Years ago Carnegie published a series of articles. In them he declared the United States never should have gone out from under the protection of the British Empire, should return to the British Empire and that when she did return GREAT BRITAIN MUST OCCUPY THE DOMINANT, CONTROLLING POSITION."

Now, if America should join the League of Nations, it would have ONLY ONE VOTE as against the SIX VOTES of the British Empire as at present constituted.

That would certainly give Great Britain "the dominant, controlling position"—that is, if ever the United States committed national suicide by becoming a member of either the British Empire or the League of Nations.

Carnegie may not have foreseen the present League Court or League of Nations, but he wished for American surrender to Great Britain and in spending millions on propaganda to get America into the League the Carnegie Endowment is helping to fulfill his wish.

These are the facts behind the Carnegie Endowment's expenditures to make Americans less American and more internationally minded.

They should be made as plain, as were the facts which prompted many American and some foreign communities to refuse, or to delay accepting, Carnegie libraries on the ground that they would be financed by "tainted money."

Whatever taint there may have been in the money he made, there is MORE THAN A TAINT in the spending of it to undermine the independence of the nation under whose flag and under whose protection and advantages it was earned.

Carnegie libraries are harmless mausoleums; Carnegie propaganda to drag America into the League of Nations through the trap door of the League Court is dangerous disloyalty to American independence.

It is the dead hand of an ungrateful immigrant reaching out from the grave to destroy the liberty of the land in which he made his millions.

There should be power to curb it by cancelling the charter of the Carnegie Endowment, but in the meantime its purpose should be denounced and its propaganda exposed.

If not, then in minting money for Carnegie, America was forging chains for future Americans.

HUEY On Air Waves TONIGHT

FIERY SENATOR FACING MIKE

By THE EARCUPPER

Storm center of the United States Senate, the loquacious Mr. Huey P. Long of Louisiana, is having a coast-to-coast loud-speaker inning (WBZ) for himself tonight at 11:30.

Matters with which the new Congress are confronted will provide timely topics for the colorful "Kingfish" to discuss. Comments covering current Administration policies are in store. Proposed Federal projects likewise await what is likely to be an opinionated onslaught by the swashbuckling Southern gentleman. Huey has the full half hour until midnight for the airing of his views. He speaks from the NBC studios in Washington, D. C.

Senator Long

Comedy comes in for treatment by Mary Pickford this evening (WEEI) on the stroke of 8 o'clock. The dramatic presentation being "Connie Goes Home" and having to do with a young lady striving to make mood sa a Broadway stage personality.

Morning when 7:30 comes to pass, through the WAAB waves.

Tune Slowly for Europe

Answers Sure, Baron Will Return

Your Air Query?

Q—Your columns said that Jack (Baron Munchausen) Pearl would return to the air right after the first of the year. We don't hear him on any station.

K. H. C. of Dorchester.

A—There has been some delay. He is returning, however. Listen on the night of February 13, at 10 o'clock, through WNAC facilities in New England. Pearl is dropping his "Baron" business in favor of a "Dutch" character, a tavern keeper. Cliff (Sharlie) Hall will remain to help him register his comedy.

Q—Who plays the part of "Yip Sing," the young Chinaman, in the "Buddy and Blake" sketches over WEEI?

Boston Visitor.

A—It is Arthur Edes, also program director for the station.

Q—With all the talk about reducing, who weighs more, Paul Whiteman or Jacques Renard?

Weighting, of Rockindale.

A: The two big boys are approximately the same, as scale subjects, with the indicator around the 197 to 200 mark. Renard perhaps has a shade on Whiteman, but not more than a half dozen pounds.

Q: You spoke of the torch singing Ethel Merman a week or so ago. How about Libby Holman? Is she in line for broadcasting?

J. F. S., Arlington.

A: Strange you should ask that. Libby will be a guest artist for Rudy Vallee tomorrow night. She will sing her celebrated "Moanin Low" selection.

Q: Why doesn't Cab Calloway have a program anymore?

X. Y. Z., of Boston.

A: Cab and his boys ARE on the air. If you consult the radio page listings, you'll find him scheduled Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights at midnight. The station is WNAC.

NOTE: Send your Questions about Radio to the Radio Editor, Boston Evening American, then watch this space for the published information you seek.

This Ear--That Air Notes Local Radio Realm Activity

By N. F. T.

Maybe there's actually something behind the "this is going to be a great year" enthusiasm one encounters. Hub broadcasting bosses and air artists are certainly optimistic enough about the trend.

As a matter of forceful fact, new sound sanctum settings are taking shape in decidedly more spirited fashion than at any time during the last 12 months.

Yesterday the word came to hand that Ranny Weeks has been given a rather smart setting to superintend. All of which will waft into New England four winds for the first time next Sunday night, originating at the Hotel Statler. Sell Moderns room. Ranny takes over 16 music men to direct some song soloing to do and a bit of ceremony mastering for himself as well. The channels of WEEI win this one.

"N. F. T."

BIG EARLY BIRD

Walter Kidder began a new baritoning series yesterday morning, breaking out across Yankee Network lanes (WNAC) 10 a. m. Harry Rogers attends to the organ accompaniment.

Then, too, there's that burlesque "Pajama Club" period breaking through about getting-up time (WNAC) or perhaps a trifle later, between 8:30 and 8:45 a. m. This one is expected to stick, although re-arrangement of the time may be found advisable, if not necessary. It appeals largely to patrons who prefer sheer nonsense along with breakfast.

LOCAL LATHER

Eliot Daniel is doing dance band duty with his recently organized tune troupe (WBZ) which just moved in atop the Hotel Bradford. Eliot hasn't had band boss responsibilities since he succeeded Lew Conrad for the Hotel Statler management some two years ago . . . Hotchs rhythm of the Harlem brand is sizzling its way by wireless (WAAB) hereabouts, three times weekly. Eddie Dees and George Tyrres are the brown-skinned boys responsible. Their syncopation originates at their hi-de-ho rendezvous out along Massachusetts Avenue . . . Jacques Renard, the Grove maestro and "thin man" of the baton bending fraternity, is almost but not quite ready to break new concerning a new and finely fashioned musical feature for the all-America four winds . . . New York wants our songbird, Alice O'Leary, too, if Dame Rumor has it right. Moreover, the network ether empire down that way would do well to annex Alice for stardom . . . This very night marks a noteworthy enlargement to that weekly "Fur Trappers" half hour, when Bede Best and Ray Morton join the cast that now consists of songsters Buddy Clark, Adrian O'Brien, the Rakov Orchestra and Roland Winters as sponsor spokesman.

Back in America but a week, following a concert tour of England and Ireland, the famous tenor of Erin, namely John MacCormack, steps into a studio spotlight (WBZ) to resume his soloing series tonight. The time is set aside for 9:30 p. m.

Fred Allen figures to continue his "Amateur Contest" carrying on when his "Town Hall Tonight" setting holds forth between 8 and 9 o'clock.

• • •

Prospective backers of Hub programs are insisting more and more upon having stations establish air acts. In other words, the buying of broadcasts before trying them out is frowned upon. Even so, and as stated at the outset here today, activity is indeed apparent to a greater degree. More snappy offerings should, therefore, be added to the Boston bill-of-fare soon. May the men behind the "mikes" remain up on their toes, and off the other fellows, to keep such a tide on the rise.

HEARST RADIO GETS NEW STATION

By Universal Service

New York, Jan. 9—George Hearst, national director of Hearst Radio, announced today the acquisition of radio station WBAL in Baltimore, through the purchase of the WBAL Broadcasting Company from the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Company of Baltimore.

The purchaser is the American Radio News Corporation, a wholly Hearst-owned unit, operating other radio stations throughout the country.

WBAL is one of the ace stations of the Atlantic Seaboard, being Maryland's only high power broadcasting station, operating with 10,000 watts of power with 100 per cent population.

One of the features of the station is its operation every night from 9 p. m. to midnight, synchronized with WJZ, the New York key station of the National Broadcasting Company's Blue Network.

Mr. Hearst in his announcement said:

"In acquiring station WBAL in Baltimore, we are pledging the people of Baltimore and Maryland to keep to the high standard now enjoyed by the station. In fact, we are going to try and better its splendid record in service to the city and state since November 3, 1925, if it is possible. We aim to develop the best in local programs and these will be supplemented by the excellent features of the NBC Blue Network."

NOW PLAYING AT THE RKO KEITH MEMORIAL THEATRE

Do you like romance?

There is plenty of it to be seen at the RKO Keith Memorial theater where the screen features, "Romance Manhattan," featuring two of today's "About Faces" drawings. The remaining two celebrities may also be seen at this famous RKO Keith Memorial theater. One is a well known organist. The other—? Well, here's a clue. In addition to the regular show there is a newsreel of the Dionne Quintuplets and a short subject, "How to Break 90" in Croquet," featuring Robert Benchley. So there!

Beneath each drawing is a block of squares. These squares equal the number of letters in the names of each star. Use the letter "N" as a guide and mail your ENTIRE week's solutions to: The About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass. ALLIANCE Unites Plymouth Theater Stars

By George Holland

First news for February. "The Distaff Side," in its fourth month in New York, will make its Boston debut at the Plymouth Theater Monday, February 4.

And with a real local angle comes news that out of a Massachusetts summer theater movement, the one at West Falmouth, where the Silver Beach Theater has held forth for several seasons, has developed a potentially important producing alliance of actors, managers and directors on a national scale. The new group is called the Stage Associates, with headquarters at St. James Theater, New York. D. A. Doran, who was associated with the production of "Gold Eagle Guy," is one of the head men, and Arthur Hanna of Milton, who was general manager at the Silver Beach Theater, will be general manager for the new group.

George Holland

More than 20 actors and actresses who have come to prominence in the past four or five years, but all of whom got their theatrical start at West Falmouth, are in the group. Manuscripts are being read, and the first work that meets with the company's enthusiasm will be staged.

The nicest gesture made in many years by one famous orchestra leader to another was the one made last night by Paul Whiteman in the direction of Jacques Renard—a direction which is daily becoming less mountainous because of M. Renard's success with his diet. Mr. Whiteman moved his whole troupe, 40 persons, to the Grove after his performance at the Met. His bandsmen brought their cumbersome trappings and an entire show was played for the patrons of the night club.

I think that the gross weekly intake of any night club in the city would be insufficient to lure Mr. Whiteman and his company on a similar venture if friendship did not enter the reckoning. And what do you think was the occasion? Mr. Renard was observing the lose of the 100th pound in his weight-reducing drive. It will be remembered that Mr. Whiteman lost 160 pounds himself before he dwindled to his current seemly proportions.

Robert Lawrence of the Whiteman organization had the most perfect natural baritone that has been heard in seasons. Lawrence Tibbett, I believe, is a dramatic baritone.

The voice of young Mr. Lawrence comes over a microphone as if it were the voice of Mr. Tibbett in an auditorium. The lad will be one of the big names before you know it.

THEATER GUILD CHIEF AGREES TO MAKE "BREAK OF HEART"

By Louella O. Parsons

Los Angeles, Jan. 9—Bringing Phillip Moeller of New York Theater Guild fame here to direct Katharine Hepburn is an interesting experiment. Mr. Moeller, a member of New York's literati, a famous playwright and a man with definite ideas, has had no experience in the movies. But he has done important things for the Theater Guild.

Wonder how his RKO job will work out? Will he and Katie and John Barrymore clash and battle for their rights, or will all three work in peace and harmony? Barrymore is due here February 1 to play opposite Hepburn and Mr. Moeller will return to New York just as soon as he finishes "Break of Heart."

When Florence Eldridge married Freddie March she gave up her career. She has been perfectly happy, too, in her lovely new home and with her two children and Freddie. But, after all, she is an actress, and a good one, with an excellent reputation. So when Darryl Zanuck asked her to play Fantine in "Les Miserables" she accepted. She will appear for the first time on the screen with her husband, who is the star of Victor Hugo's great classic.

Universal and RKO will have to fight it out between them to decide which one gets William Powell. Both studios claim him. Powell, according to Universal, is under contract to them and will start immediately on "The Great Ziegfeld." RKO, on the other hand, says Bill will begin work January 15 in "Star at Midnight" and that the picture has been held up waiting for him. Meanwhile Powell isn't saying a thing. He only wishes he were twins so he could be in both places at once.

Chatter in Hollywood

Now that Lupe Velez has definitely made up her mind to divorce her Johnnie, he is finding consolation elsewhere. The very silent Tarzan has been dancing in the New Roosevelt supper room with Nan Brooke Macy night after night and also at the Clover Club. The same night that he and Mrs. Macy were at the Clover Club, Lupe was at the Trocadero with Charlie Lemaire. Mrs. Macy is the divorced wife of one of the firm of Macy's department store of New York, and a good looker. P. S. Johnnie has a new hair cut, too.

Snapshots of Hollywood

DORIS WARNER LEROY picking the winners at the Santa Anita race track; if Mervyn had followed her tips he would be richer today; the WARNER BAXTERS, JANET GAYNOR and others getting a thrill out of watching the ponies run; MRS. IRVING CUMMINGS playing bunches and doing all right; luncheon and Saturday afternoon at the track a popular pastime for the movie folk who were much in evidence; ZEPPO MARX looking sad and saying him; HAL ROACH studying racing forms and WESLEY RUGGLES doing the same; MRS. ROBERT MONTGOMERY getting a big hand when she placed a wreath on the winner of the big race; CAROLE LOMBARD'S pals dropping in Sunday to say "au revoir"; she and Fiedler airplaning to New York on the first lap of their European trip; ANNA AND ABE LEHR home from Europe, at BEN and BEBE LYON'S buffet supper; HOWARD HUGHES with MARGARET LINDSAY in tow; BILLIE DOVE and her good-looking husband, the RUSSELL MACKS, the BUDDY LIGHTONS, EDDIE SUTHERLAND and a new girl friend, the SKEETS GALLAGHERS and many other friends at the dinner; BEN and BEBE and the SKEETS GALLAGHERS choo-chooing to New York to appear in a stage play; all three were guests of honor of LORNA and GEORGE HEARST at a dinner last night after which BEBE, BEN and SKEETS were escorted to the train; if the play goes over the way Hollywood expects, they will be away from their movie friends for many months; ADMIRAL REEVES, DR. ROBERT MILLIKAN, DR. VON KLEINSCHMID among the educators at the preview of "David Copperfield." That's all today. See you tomorrow!

WILL ROGERS RETURNS

Opening a day ahead of the customary schedule, "The County Chairman," starring Will Rogers, comes to the screen of the Metropolitan tomorrow.

The comedian's newest film has been adapted from the famous George Ade stories of small town politics in the early 1900's, with Will as the village political leader. Louise Dresser, Kent Taylor, Evelyn Venable, Stepin Fetchit, Mickey Rooney and Robert McWade appear in support of the star.

The new stage offering, "Star Lust Revue," centers around Benny Davis, famous song writer, and his new collection of stars.

Included in the company of vocalists, dancers, comedians and novelty artists are Jimmy Shea and Gay Raymond, Rollo Pickert, Keith Mann, Bobby Lane, Evelyn Farney, Jimmy Byrnes, Bobby Bernard, Blanche Lewis, Babe Sherman and the Winstead Trio. The Elida Ballet and Fabien Savitsky are other features of the show.

The third week, opening January 28, offers "The Mikado" on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, "Princess Ida" on Thursday night only, and "Cox and Box," together with "H. M. S. Pinafore" for the remainder of the week.

Given In Marriage

Adele Garrison's Serial

Hugh Described As a "Catch" For Avis

CHAPTER 237

Philip Veritzen's voice cut through my humiliating thoughts and brought me back to attention with a jerk.

In reality, less than a second had elapsed since Fanny Arlen's pouting reply to him, but in that time I had traveled far into the past and back again.

"That's the oldest of all pretty sentiments, Fanny; that one about marrying only for love," said Mr. Veritzen. "It's just what you ought to say at this time. But now that you've gotten it out of your system, don't you think you would do better to consider a bit what an opportunity your daughter may be passing up, if she follows the advice you have just outlined?"

"Opportunity!" Fanny Arlen's voice again held a shrill note, and I reflected that she must be excited, indeed, to betray what I suspected to be the natural timber of her voice.

Invariably, during my acquaintanceship with her, she has spoken in soft tones, almost too beautifully modulated to be natural.

I had already wondered once or twice—and scored myself as catty for the conjecture—whether she were not carefully employing those tones because she knew Philip Veritzen's horror of shrill feminine voices, and if she were not "setting her cap" for the man who, in her husband's lifetime, had been his best friend and business partner.

"Opportunity!" she shrilled again. "What do you mean?"

Mr. Veritzen bowed and spread his hands ironically.

"My dear Fanny," he said suavely. "Think a minute, and you will realize what I mean. A moonlight night, an open car, ocean waves rolling up on the beach, a beautiful girl, an impressionable man—what better opportunity could a girl or an ambitious mother wish?"

"I think you're horrid, Phil." Fanny Arlen repeated her former playful indictment, and pouted again. "I'm not an ambitious mother in the sense you mean. I'm ambitious for my darling's happiness, but—"

"Better stop right there, Fanny," Mr. Veritzen advised. "If I know anything about the modern girl, happiness spells pearls and Paris gowns, and imported motors, and country estates, and all the rest of the list. I can't imagine Avis married to a poor man. Better throw out the lines for a rich one when he swims into your vicinity."

"I shan't listen to you any longer," Mrs. Arlen said, shrugging a shapely shoulder at him. "I don't like it, and you've only made me begin to worry for Avis. It's terribly late for her to be out alone, especially with a man of the world, such as I judge Major Grantland to be. I am very angry at him. He has no business to keep her out so much longer than the rest of us."

"Tell me, Mrs. Graham. You are our hostess. What sort of man is Major Grantland? Do you think it is perfectly all right for Avis to be out with him?"

I saw red for an instant, then, as often happens to my rages, I turned icy cold. And I did not try to restrain the catty impulse which made me say frigidly:

"If I had not known Major Grantland to be everything that is honorable and chivalrous, I should have interposed when your daughter asked him to take her to the beach in his car. As her hostess I would not have permitted her to go. But, knowing Major Grantland—he is a friend of many years standing of both my husband and myself—I knew that she would have a delightful drive, and I was glad to have her enjoy the outing."

"That is very sweet of you," Mrs. Arlen said perfunctorily, and as if she did not believe a word I had been saying. But Phil Veritzen bowed to me again and gave an ironic little chuckle.

"Praise from Sir Hubert," he said, with a certain sly emphasis that kindled my rage against him anew.

Best-Known Falsecard Play

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Perhaps the best-known and most widely used falsecard is the play of an unnecessarily high card in winning a trick.

While under certain circumstances it is so obvious as to defeat its own purpose, it becomes very persuasive when a major tenace is deliberately sacrificed.

In the following example, the Declarer ingeniously helped along the cause of deception by a bold psychological play at a later stage. The combination proved too much for the defense to penetrate.

East, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠8653 ♡Q7 ◇AQ83 ♣A74
♠K922 ♡K85 ◇98 ♣J1096	North West East South	♠J8 ◇AJ432 ♡J10752 ♣3
	♠AQ10 ♡1096 ◇K6 ♣KQ852

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♣	Pass	1◇
Pass	1NT	Pass	3NT(1)
Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) A bid of two or three clubs is more correct, but it happened that just at this moment the North player was bent upon destroying a reputation for being a pussy footer.

West opened the deuce of spades, Dummy playing the three and East the Jack.

Now South was a player of lightning decisions. It could be charged that he sometimes jumped into plays that he afterward regretted, but never that he indulged in the huddle of the irresolute. With just a glance at Dummy, he pounced on the trick with the Ace of spades.

Two rounds of clubs followed, and the bad news was out. East discarded the deuce of diamonds. Declarer thanks his lucky stars for the mercies that West held the club stopper rather than East and that East evidently was not continued with two more rounds of clubs. East discarding two small hearts. Just to clinch the case against the heart shift, Declarer ingeniously discarded the Queen of hearts from dummy! He simulated the appearance of hoping that Dummy's spades might stop the suit, and of unblocking for a possible finesse of the Ace-Jack in hearts.

Do you blame West for blandly assuming that East held the spade Queen, with nothing in hearts, and for returning a small spade?

Spring Forecast

By Annice Brink

WHEN the groundhog shows up next month, the shadow he casts is going to have a strong navy blue tinge . . . it promises to be so all-pervading a spring color! A navy blue waffle-weave sheer trimmed with plaid taffeta will cheer up the weather-worn fur coat now, and step out gaily in the spring. An ascot tucks into the collar, a harness leather belt is smart, and the spinning-disc buttons add a touch of zip. A quilted taffeta sailor has a naive brim. See paragraph below.

If you wish for further details on the navy blue frock or quilted taffeta sailor, illustrated above (both very budget, since the dress is around twelve dollars, the hat around five), both from a Boston shop, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BLUE-RED POLISH

FINGER AND TOE NAILS A LA JOAN CRAWFORD

By JULIET SHELBY

Joan Crawford is a lady with glamour. And, what is more, she is American. Her spectacular climb to stardom should convince us that every American girl can acquire individual beauty, poise and success.

She has a strong dramatic sense and a striking screen personality. Brightly painted fingernails and toenails accentuate these. She is the type of beauty who can flash vivid nail colors and not make you wince.

It is because she carefully selects her bright shades (which have as many variations as lighter shades) to complement her costume of the day or of the night.

We all admit that bright nails give a sense of smartness. My fingers work better if they are nicely manicured and touched up with a bright liquid polish. But I can see why so many men object to vivid nails when I look around and see how carelessly they are worn.

A famous Fifth Avenue specialist who has made hands and feet her career has just brought out a blue-red nail polish that is the most wildly beautiful thing you can picture. You can't imagine the things it does to your personality, not your gowns—particularly those with blue and red tones.

This polish was created particularly for the Joan Crawford type girl. You can rest assured that she uses it, for La Crawford is ever on the watch for glamorous and exciting things. And nothing adds so much to allure as strikingly lovely nails.

If you wish to know the name of this very new blue-red nail polish that has just appeared in smart shops, call Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FACIAL Brings Glow TO SKIN

Question: Are facials good for correcting oily skin conditions? Will you also tell me whether you ever heard of a grapefruit facial. A friend of mine says that grapefruit acts as a fine astringent, but I have never heard of its use. Will you kindly advise me about this?

Mrs. A. W. A., Lawrence.

Answer: Yes, indeed, facials are very good for oily skins. In fact, they can be used much more often on oily skins than on dry ones. I have a home-made recipe for an egg and grapefruit facial that is fine for refining the texture of the skin. It also acts as a fine astringent, tightening the muscles and bringing a healthy glow to the cheeks. You can obtain this grapefruit and egg facial by writing to me at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

JELLY DESSERTS

Swedish Charlotte Is Dainty

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

Were you among the busy bees all during the summer and fall when we had a great abundance of fresh fruit?

If so it is with pleasure that you turn to a well stocked pantry shelf of jellies, especially as there are so many practical ways jellies can be used.

SWEDISH CHARLOTTE

Add ½ cup currant jelly to two unbeaten egg whites, and whip until stiff. Cut a sponge cake into two or three layers, depending upon thickness of cake. Place first a layer of the jelly whip, then a layer of canned or fresh peaches, well drained, between layers of cake. Coat entire cake with the jelly whip and bake in a slow oven (300 deg. F.) 15 minutes, or until slightly brown. Cool, slice and serve with coffee.

PEACH TARTS

2 cups flour, sifted
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup fat
About ¼ cup cold water

Sift the flour with the baking powder and salt. Cut in the shortening and moisten with enough cold water to form a stiff dough. Roll to 1-8 inch thickness and cut in rounds, by placing a large saucer on pastry and cutting around with knife. In center of each round of pastry place ½ of a canned peach, from which juice has been drained, and fill cavity with currant jelly. Roll pastry up around peach and press edges together so peaches are entirely hidden. Place on baking sheet and bake for 20 minutes in hot oven (450 deg. F.). Serve hot or cold with the following sauce: Blend 2 teaspoons flour with 1 cup peach juice. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and cook until sauce thickens slightly. Add 6 marshmallows, just before pour-

CURRANT GRAPE PIE

4 eggs
⅝ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup currant jelly
¼ cup grape jelly

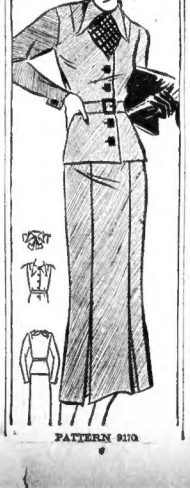
Break eggs in a bowl and add sugar, nutmeg and cinnamon, and best until well mixed. Whip the currant and grape jelly, using a fork and add to egg mixture. Blend thoroughly. Pour into an unbaked pie shell, or cup cake pans lined with pastry, and bake at 425 deg. F. for five minutes. Reduce heat to 350 deg. F. and bake for about 30 minutes, or until custard is set. If cup cake pans are used, bake for 20 to 25 minutes.

Reply for "Constant Reader"

In making our recipe for Christmas Fruit, it is not necessary to add any liquid to the sugar and yeast to dissolve them, as a reaction takes place between the sugar and yeast. After mixing them together, they slowly become liquid.

The melted butter is added after the milk is stirred in.

JAUNTY BLOUSE



PATTERN 9170

Two-Piece Frock Peps Winter Wardrobe

By MARIAN MARTIN

If you've been opening your closet-door lately and emitting a well-known feminine wail — "I simply haven't got a thing to wear"—what you probably need to set matters right again is a spirited two-piece silk or wool frock such as the one sketched today. The blouse with square buttons marching up the front—perky tab collar and well-tailored sleeves that end in trim tabs at the wrist—is about the last word in smartness. And the skirt is fronted by a nice vanel that breaks into two jaunty pleats. Change the neckline effect by slipping a colorful triangular scarf beneath the tabs or by tying a gay bow at the throat—very chic!

Pattern 9170 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards 54-inch fabric and ¾ yard 39 inch contrasting.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Send your order to Boston American Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

England and Continent Attracts Many of Smart Set

DEBUTANTE SILHOUETTES . . . Beginning next week we will print from time to time, India ink profiles of popular debutantes, done in antique style which is reminiscent of the days before the advent of photography . . . days when such old masters as Pearl, Edouard, Monsieur de Silhouette and even the great Stuart, roamed the country on horseback and afoot, armed with only a facile brush or flexible scissors, eking out an existence by painting or snipping out the shades of our ancestors . . .

By withholding the name of the debutante portrayed, but by mentioning several of her individual characteristics together with a few hints as to her identity, we hope you will find much entertainment in discovering the lady's identity from these hints and from the profile likeness . . .

DOROTHY McKEY

Studying Abroad

WE HEAR THAT charming little debutante, Dottie McKey, who has gone to England to study until early summer, has changed her mode of living back to normal and is leading a very model life . . . Just before she went away life became so hectic that she was practically turning night into day but now she writes that she really enjoys being up early enough to hear the birds go tweet, tweet, and a quiet foursome of bridge is adequate diversion during the week . . . although she admits that she is looking forward to several weekends in London.

Dorothy made her debut at a luncheon in November at which her attractive sister, Mrs. "Jimmie" Hallowell of Concord entertained a table of her intimate friends . . .

If she happens to run into her sister deb, Mary Dewart, who is wintering in England, they will probably let their friends roam back to Boston where their pals are still enjoying debutante festivities and the doors of the Junior League swing wide every day to admit all the zealous supporters of the various interests of the League . . .

Miss Mary went abroad last summer with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. William H. Dewart of Beacon Hill, so she missed the parties on the North Shore as well as the gay season in town . . .

SPEAKING OF DEBUTANTES . . . nothing less than a reception given at the home of J. P. Morgan would have torn so many of the guests who attended the party that famous gentleman gave for his granddaughter, away from their hearths, so infrequently do they venture out into the world of resplendent social functions . . . the whole affair was one of great dignity with at least half the guest list representative of New York's oldest and most imposing names . . .

Louise Morgan, daughter of a former Boston girl, has the quiet dignity of her mother and is very bit as attractive . . .

Her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Converse went over from their home in Westwood and had a wonderful time at the party . . . Mr. and Mrs. Christian Herter and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Curtis also had the memorable experience of attending a party in the Morgan home . . . which has not been opened for a social function of any size for some years . . .

Sailing to Germany to be with her son and daughter, Ralph and Frances, Mrs. Ralph B. Williams is eagerly anticipating the reunion . . . They are both skiing enthusiasts and plan later in the season to visit the Junior George Fearings at the little chalet they have hired for the winter in the Austrian Tyrol . . . The Fearings took their children with them and anticipated a long winter of perfect skiing conditions . . .

Mr. and Mrs. John G. S. Humphries of Andover have been enjoying a visit from the latter's sister-in-law, Mrs. George Prior . . .

Trouts Soon for Vincent Club Show

WE HOPE ALICE BURRAGE of Beverly Farms will hurry back from her trip to Baltimore to be on hand for the tryouts for the Vincent Club Show . . . The first bugle call has sounded to proclaim to members that preparations for the annual spring revue will soon be under way and the talented Alice was such an asset to last year's show that we hope she will be in a leading role again . . .

Evidently there are not as many society kittens as dogs for the only felines of social prominence listed in the entries for the cat show which opens tomorrow are, as has already been announced, the pair of Abyssinians of Mrs. Gardiner Fiske . . .

At the Literary Morning on Monday we missed Mrs. Harry Hill Thorndike from her regular chair . . . She is engrossed these days with plans for the meeting of the National Civic Federation on the fourteenth of January, at which a representative from the American Liberty League will bring a message to the Boston branch . . .

Tucky Astor Beauty Eclipsed Only by Poise

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Universal Service Society Editor

New York, Jan. 9—If ever there were a maligned young woman, that young woman is Mrs. John Jacob Astor, the former Eleanor "Tucky" French of Dedham, Massachusetts.

The other evening, when I happened to be a member of the same dinner party as the Astors, my place at the flower-banked table was just opposite the attractive young woman known to her intimates as "Tucky."

And I had an excellent opportunity to study at close range the possessor of the foremost social name in the U. S. A.

To say that Mrs. Astor is "pretty" does not fully describe her titian loveliness. She possesses a roguish beauty that attracts—and holds—your attention—and to which no photograph could do full justice.

And—her beauty is only eclipsed by her poise.

Talks Well

Throughout that dinner party she talked in a quiet, but none-the-less authoritative manner, on a wide variety of subjects with an even wider variety of gentlemen She knew just what to say to the younger men and what would appeal to the white-haired cavaliers

And as the dinner party progressed, my admiration for Mrs John Jacob Astor deepened, and by the end of the feast she was one of my pet enthusiasms.

Many other young women, were they blessed with the Astor name and had they received so much attention from the press, would have swollen craniums.

Not so "Tucky" French Astor.

Superb Carriage

And many of her friends in the funfor circles would do well to take note of her truly superb carriage on the dance floor.

She is a dignified little thoroughbred—and if ever, in the past, I have been rude in my editorial comments on Mrs. John Jacob Astor, I hereby tender my abject apologies.

Until that dinner party I did not appreciate the fact that she will bring only glory and honor to the fine old name she wears — and bears with a distinction one would expect of only a woman many years her senior.

New York, Jan. 9—It could happen only once in a lifetime.

For several breath-taking minutes, Isaac Masler and Morris Shapiro, in a heavy sedan, actually teetered on the brink of death, 145 feet above the street after their car smashed through the guard rail of Manhattan Bridge.

They succeeded in the hair-raising feat of opening the car doors and tiptoeing back to safety.

Rooney and Kathryn F. Griffin.

The administrator is accused of being indifferent to placing unemployed women, and of permitting money to be returned to Washington because of lack of projects.

The Harrington sisters, two of the winners of the previous week Amateur Night are shown above with Oscar Hausserman, executive chairman of the Emergency Campaign of 1935. The campaign received the first week's donation and Mr. Hausserman delivered a talk at the Opera House.

While the donation is expected to be only 10 cents per ticket many people are sending in one and two dollar bills for only two and three tickets, and the charity idea is gaining momentum in leaps and bounds.

Celebrant of the funeral mass was the Rev. F. J. O'Connell, of St. John's church, Roxbury; with the Rev. Michael Cuddahy, of St. Matthew's, Dorchester, as deacon and preacher; the Rev. Ambrose D. Walker, Sacred Heart, Roslindale, as sub-deacon, and the Rev. Harry O'Connor, of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, as master of ceremonies.

The Rev. George Mahan, S. J., of Weston College, acted as thurifer, while the acolytes were the Revs. Thomas Devlin, of St. Augustine's, South Boston, and John O'Leary, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Malden.

The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Joseph C. Walsh, of St. John's Seminary, Brighton, and more than 75 priests of the archdiocese, attended the services.

BABY OVERCOME

Donald Horgan, 18-month-old son of George Horgan, of 800 Chatham street, Lynn, was overcome in the kitchen of his home today when a lighted stack to heat water burned up all the oxygn in th room.

Th infant's father had lighted the stack and then went into a bedroom to complete his dressing. When he returned to the kitchen, he found his son unconscious.

Fog Lifts for 2 Liners; Others Held in Harbor

Although there was a temporary lift of the fog curtains early today, only two vessels were able to get away before Boston's coastline was again obscured for the third consecutive day.

The liner, Andania, which came in from Cobh and Liverpool hours late yesterday, left this morning after discharging 25 passengers. The other departure was made by the President Van Burne, for New York and around the world.

The only vessel to dock this morning was the Danish steamer, Stella, from Chile ports, which ran ashore in yesterday's fog on Baker's Island off Salem.

Eight vessels, due in port here Monday, lifted anchor from various places along the coast, but sailed only a short distance in the impenetrable murk.

Due to arrive here yesterday and leave Boston this afternoon for Yarmouth and St. John, the liner Yarmouth was forced to cancel passage today. She just sailed from Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, this morning and expects to arrive here at 8 o'clock tonight. She schedules her departure from Central Wharf at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow.

The Boston trawler, Plymouth, object of consiguard search since late yesterday, by wireless telephone today said she was "anchored 250 miles east by south a half mile south of Boston Light Vessel."

Because of the "pea-soup" fog surrounding the Plymouth, the Coast Guard cutter Mojave, close by, is unable to get to the vessel.

Still unaccounted for are the two Chatham fishermen afloat in a 26-foot boat, missing since last night.

Over the entire North Atlantic seaboard air traffic and ocean shipping was still in a state of paralysis.

Fog over the mid-West covered the fate of an airplane, which was reported in trouble over Chicago, while airports and Coast Guard kept a lookout.

The steamer Benjamin B. Odell, carrying 30 passengers from Albany to New York, dropped from sight yesterday afternoon after being due in New York yesterday morning. Undue concern was not felt as the vessel carried no radio, and line officials early expressed the belief she was anchored safely in the river.

In the fogbound fleet outside New York harbor were the Majestic and the Empress of Britain. The Oriente, the Scanmail, the Santa Rita, and the American Banker, managed to creep in to quarantine.

The fog failed, however, to prevent the Boston fishing fleet from landing 1,200,000 pounds of fish. Eighteen of the fishermen landed cargoes and again put out.

While unseasonal warmth kept much of the United States in a veil of mist, central Europe was swept by a "New England" blizzard that crippled traffic and communications.

ROSS DENIES CHARGES

Charges that he violated the corrupt practices act were flatly denied today by Mayor Charles A. Ross of Quincy. He issued the following:

"These proceedings were brought through political spite and are without foundation in fact. My answer to these charges will be presented in court.

"When I have an opportunity to be heard I have and the slightest doubt that I will be exonerated."

Leave to file a petition attacking the validity of Ross' election was granted yesterday by Suffolk Superior Judge Wilford D. Gray who stated there was "reasonable cause to believe that a corrupt practice had been committed."

3 GIRLS ACCUSE YOUTH HELD IN $5002

Facing serious charges preferred by three Lynn girls Henry Burke, 18, of Essex street, Lynn, today was held for the grand jury in bail of $5002. Bonds of $2000 were fixed on an attack charge and $1 each was asked on two counts of attempted attack.

Arrested last night, the boy was identified, police say, by Agnes Battis and Alice Gaudreau, both 17, and both living in Barrett street, Lynn. The more serious charge against him was preferred by another Lynn girl, Katherine Burke.

"SALADA" TEA

—so far as we know tobacco was first used about 400 years ago

—throughout the years what one thing has given so much pleasure..so much satisfaction

Early Colonial planters shipped hundreds of pounds of tobacco to England in return for goods and supplies.

They came looking for gold ...but they found tobacco

... and tobacco has been like gold ever since!

The tobacco raised in Virginia and exchanged for goods helped the struggling colonists to get a foothold when they came to America.

Later on, it was tobacco that helped to clothe and feed Washington's brave army at Valley Forge.

Today it is tobacco that helps—more than any other commodity raised in this country—to pay the expense of running our Government.

In the fiscal year 1933-34 the Federal Government collected $425,000,000 from the tax on tobacco. Most of this came from cigarettes—six cents tax on every package of twenty.

Yes, the cigarette helps a lot—and it certainly gives men and women a lot of pleasure.

Smokers have several reasons for liking Chesterfields. For one thing, Chesterfields are milder. For another thing, they taste better. They Satisfy.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1935

This Is Life

By ROGERS

I have just read what is without exception the great European novel of the year.

It is titled "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" (Viking), by Franz Werfel, brilliant Viennese Jew, playwright and novelist.

He first became known to the American public through the Theater Guild's production, some years ago, of "Goat Song," symbolic tragedy, and "Maximilian and Juarez," historical tragedy of the ill-fated occupant of the Mexican throne back in the days of our Civil Days. He has, too, several profoundly imagined novels to his credit.

Back in the years of the forties in Russian history, under the repressive rule of Czar Nicholas I, the censorship was so strong that Russian liberal or radical authors had to camouflage their ideas in the form of fiction which on the surface was merely harmless yarn-spinning, but which, read between the lines, revealed anti-czarist propaganda.

Robert F. Rogers

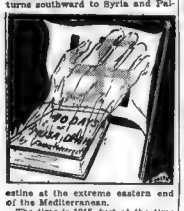
In such manner Turgenev wrote his "Tales of a Hunter" or "Sportsman's Sketches," sometimes called the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" of Russia, since it dealt with the sorrows of the Serfs and led directly to their liberation by Alexander II.

Tragic Novels

Nowadays something of the same device is apparently necessary in Germany, where Werfel's novel is not banned but merely recognized as being "unwholesome" and to be sold at the booksellers' risk.

In "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh," Werfel uses the same method of oblique indirection as the Russians used, aiming at Hitler and the Nazis in telling the story of an earlier time and another people.

Musa Dagh (the Mountain of Moses) is a rough and wild mountain situated just where the southern coast of Anatolia (Asia Minor) turns southward to Syria and Palestine at the extreme eastern end of the Mediterranean.



The time is 1915, just at the time when the Young Turks, rulers of modern Turkey under German control, had by joining the Germans in the Great War found themselves free of the long established and hateful control of the Christian nations of Europe. No longer were the allies able to protect against the Turkish massacres of the Armenians.

So the government planned a deliberate, cold blooded and thorough extermination of the Armenians by driving whole provinces, down to the meanest village, out of their homes without warning.

All Ages in Line

One Europeanized Armenian, hearing in advance of what was coming to his retired and peaceful township, utilized his military training in the Turkish army to fortify the rugged mountain on the sea called Musa Dagh.

There, under increasing and increasing hardships they held out for 40 days against the Turkish troops, against three increasingly serious attacks of professional troops reinforced at the last with artillery. Three times they outwitted them and fought them back.

On the fortieth day, just as a Turkish general arrived to take command and to direct his artillery against the mountain camp, a French squadron arrived by accident and saved the remnants of the rote little band. Only the leader lached is plain that the novel is an allegory, if you will call it so, of the treatment of Jews by the Nazis and a call to arms by a Jewish author to his people.

The clue lie in a chapter—a historical record, for the whole story is true—of a conversation between a humanitarian American Lutheran pastor and Enver Pasha, Turkish commander, who represents, so to speak, Hitler. The Turk says that between human beings and plague germs (the Armenians) there can be no peace. The substitution is clear.

ROXBURY MAN WINS PRIZE

By the NEWS TIP EDITOR

The sales staff were busily engaged with customers in a Tremont street jewelry store last Wednesday. Two well-dressed men walked through the door.

The quiet undertone of conversation was stilled when one of the men whipped out a revolver and shouted.

"Don't move or you're all dead."

The other went to a counter and scooped up thousands of dollars worth of jewelry. They then made their escape.

The passersby knew something was wrong when the manager ran to the sidewalk shouting for police. One man ran to a telephone and called the News Tip Editor of the Boston Evening American, Liberty 4000. He is John Moriarty of 1223 Tremont street, Roxbury. His wins first prize of $25.

The editor believes the $10 second prize should be divided between Charles E. The "Lindbergh kidnaping case was dropped right into New England's back-yard last Friday with the arrival of John F. "Jafsie" Condon. His presence was important. Arthur Dill of Rockland knew that. He telephoned the News Tip Editor. His reward is a crisp $5 bill.

NEW DOLE TO AID IDLE IN BRITAIN

By Associated Press

London, Jan. 9—Great Britain assumed responsibility today for the relief of more than 4,000,000 unemployed persons.

Adopting the opposite viewpoint from that taken by President Roosevelt, the British government is taking under its wing the task of administering relief under the dole system, which hitherto had been handled by local authorities.

About two months will be required for the completion of the centralization of relief work. Sir Henry Betterton, as head of the unemployme t insurance board, is to be personal guardian of Britain's jobless and administrator of government expenditures totaling $375,000,000 annually.

Sir Henry declared the new setup would make for equality of treatment and uniform administration throughout the country.

Destroyer Is Launched at Navy Yard

Christened by 15-year-old Mary Frances Monaghan, of Spokane, Washington, the U. S. destroyer Monaghan was launched at the Charlestown Navy Yard today before more than 1400 civic dignitaries, naval officers, yard employes and spectators.

This latest addition to the American battle fleet is a 1500-ton vessel that cost $3,500,000. When commissioned next summer, she will mount five-inch guns and carry a complement of 125 men.

The ship was named for Ensign John R. Monaghan, one of the eight members of a landing party at Apia, Samoa, in 1899, in attempting to supress a native raid.

She was christened by the niece of this man. Just before the official ceremony, she was presented a diamond-studded platinum wrist watch by the Yard personnel.

BLAST! 2 BURNED IN MILTON GARAGE

An explosion, believed resulting from ignition of accumulated gasoline fumes, painfully burned John W. Rogers and Arthur Rogers, brothers, and damaged their garage at 955 Canton avenue, Milton, today.

The brothers were taken to Milton Hospital suffering from second degree burns to hands and arms.

The blast blew two doors and windows from the garage, a one-story structure, and slightly damaged a bus, which was being repaired.

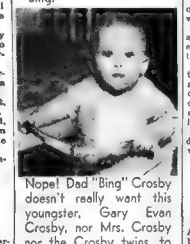
World to End! But Not Ours

LIKE 'BING'? WELL, YOU MAY GET MORE CROSBYS

"Bing" Crosby fans are always "yeling for more," so the movie moguls say. Therefore "Bing," shown above in action pose, may soon have his efforts supplemented by those of his wife and three babies. It's almost a promise.

This is the wife that millions of other women envy. Sure, Mrs. "Bing" Crosby. She used to be Dixie Lee, screen star in her own right. Now she may come back to the films—with her three babies—to help out 'Bing."



Nope! Dad "Bing" Crosby doesn't really want this youngster, Gary Evan Crosby, nor Mrs. Crosby nor the Crosby twins, to make a Crosby family movie. Not for a mere $10,000 anyhow. But for $25,000. Well—er—that, of course, might be different.

Star Doomed

COLOSSAL BLAST DUE

By Associated Press

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 9—A preview of the end of the world is patiently awaited by astronomers.

From their choice seats behind the world's largest telescope they expect to see the curtain rise sometime in the next two years, says Dr. Fritz Zwicky, astrophysicist of California Institute of Technology.

The stage, he thinks, will be in the direction of Virgo star cluster, some 42,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles away.

From among Virgo's 500 galaxies, Dr. Zwicky said today, one of the stars probably will step forth in the stellar role of a super-nova, and enact "the end of the world" quite harmlessly for the astronomers who watch.

The play will be fatal to the star for it will explode with a brilliance perhaps equal to that of a hundred million suns. There have been such collossal scenes before, but modern astronomy has yet to study one.

Dr. Zwicky believes any star may become a super-nova. The study of an exploding star with modern instruments would give the answer to questions about history, evolution and death of stars.

"The theory gives us a new idea of the possible nature of the ends of the earth," he said, pointing out that should the sun suddenly explode, the earth soon thereafter would be nothing but a hot cloud of gases drifting into space.

BANDITS ROB 6 STORES DURING RAID

Five chain stores in Everett and one in Malden were robbed today, with a loss of approximately $2000.

The gang began its operation in a store on Morris street, West Everett. From there they proceeded to Union street.

From Union street the gang went to Hancock street where three stores each within a block of the other were entered From Hancock street they went to Summer street to make their final break in Everett.

Then the gang proceeded to Malden where a store on Beech street was entered.

EDDY TREE Shipped to Texas

BABY NAMED for Gov. Curley

James Michael—after the Governor—are the names given by Mr. and Mrs. John J. Leahy of 90 Grove road, North Waltham, to a child born yesterday.

The baby is the eighth in the Leahy home—five boys and three girls. The father was formerly prominent in Cambridge politics and was an active Curley-for-Governor worker.

McINTYRE

New York Day by Day

New York, Jan. 9—Much metropolitan woe settles around Madison Square at dusk. Even on chilliest evenings the benches are filled with those who have lost heart or don't care.

The only show of life is in the chirp of the swarm of bootblacks.

Some of the hardier veterans, stuffing vagrant newspapers inside their clothing, are stretched out for a nap before the lights prickle surrounding buildings.

Nobody appears to talk or show interest in passers-by. Women you never see elsewhere, forlorn, unquestioning, are there.

In this sluggishness of the city's slow pulse, even the O. O. McIntyre gait of the pedestrian is halting.

And the whole effect is of a motionless dark cloud of unhappiness.

Cupid somehow avoids Madison Square at nightfall. Unlike other public squares, there are no nestling, whispering couples under the stars.

Instead, all is grim, forbidding. Social workers have found the square one of the last stops of those who have zig-zagged down the social scale.

They teeter there in the penumbra of indecision before shrugging their shoulders and moving eastward. To the Bowery and oblivion.

French "Plague"

Yorkville's Great White Way on East 86th street is brighter than ever with its almost solid two blocks of Bavarian fronted beer houses and waiters in feathered Tyrolean hats and leather shorts.

The German district was recently extravagantly publicised in connection with the visits of the Lindbergh kidnaping suspect to various plaisis.

France, unable to lure tourists thither, is sending not only her stats artists, but shopkeepers. Two of the season's entertainers were Yvonne Printemps and Lucienne Boyer.

At least a dozen French shops opened this winter in midtown and two famous Parisian dress makers are to make their bow with New York establishments this spring.

Nearly all of the perfumiers are opening big branches here. And there's a plague of French restaurants.

The last hold-out of the old American guard in Paris who has not scurried home is the celebrated expatriate, E. Berry Wall.

Long ago he turned the bulk of his fortune into francs and that is alone responsible for his remaining there, his cronies have departed. Even to Anthony Drexel, who came home recently to die.

Walker's Table

Jimmy Walker's table, first on the right inside the dining room entrance of the Casino, often bears a reserved card. It is a coveted spot somehow and only given to the favored.

Phil Plant fell heir to it shortly after Walker's exit, and now that Plant is off globe girdling it goes to those who meet the approval of the head-waiter's practiced eye.

During the public storm around Walker he made it a point to drop in every midnight—all merry and bright.

It was his way of registering nonchalance, and such is the New York civic consciousness it was effective.

Jack Dempsey's mighty right will stand him in good stead as front man at his new restaurant. Most customers, especially the young fellow with his girl, will want to shake hands with the champion.

Thus, on a busy day, Dempsey must mitt about 1000. Once the scowling terror, he has already become, just by rehearsing, a Sunny Jim.

Harry Cooper also opened a barn like Dempsey place several blocks away recently. Remember him—the Empire City Quartette?

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

"Escaped Axe-Slayer"

Wild Adventure Comes Right Into Home of This Brave Boy and Sister

HELLO, EVERYBODY.

All right. Here she goes—this adventure yarn I promised you at our last club meeting. And it just proves, once more, that you don't have to prowl around the African jungles to find thrills. No, sir, you don't have to be a big game hunter, either, to run across tough spots where you have to do hair-trigger thinking.

Why, if Jimmy Hagle, who lives at 218 Pope street, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, never sees a jungle, well—he will have plenty of adventure to look back upon.

Hold on to your chairs, boys and girls.

Jimmy Hagle—it's James Ruthven Hagle now—was 12 years old, back in 1917, when America jumped into the World War. Frances—that's his sister—was 18. Both went to the same schoolhouse. Thanksgiving rolled around and school was dismissed at noon the day before, for the holidays.

FLOYD GIBBONS

Jimmy and his schoolmates were leap-frogging home, snow-balling and whetting up their Turkey Day appetites.

Right then, from over those snow-covered, vacant lots, came a low moan. It sharpened in the crackly air until it became a shriek. That meant just one thing to kids and grown-ups in Fort Leavenworth.

There were three prisons around that town and when a siren groaned, it meant that one or more convicts had escaped. It meant terror to women at home alone.

Jimmy and the boys were too busy with Thanksgiving plans to worry much about the siren's wail. Escaped convicts wouldn't bother kids. So they all shivered a little, started snow-balling again and romped home.

Jimmy neared his house. A strange black Tom-cat scurried out of the open coal chute. Jimmy heaved a snowball at it and ran into the kitchen for a sniff of Thanksgiving preparation. Mother and Dad were all dressed up. Big affair up in Kansas City they had to attend. Mother would be back, bright and early to fix that turkey. Jimmy and Frances had been tentatively planted with the neighbors for the night.

"Nix," said Jimmy. "We'll stay here. Think we're afraid?"

Well, they did stay. Alone for the first time, the house seemed dark and sinister. The light snow turned to a Kansas blizzard. Rattled the doors and windows and howled around the corners.

Lights out and 12-year-old Jimmy lay sleepless, listening to noises of the storm. Memory of that wailing siren came back. Memory, also, of his father's comment on newspaper articles. Dad had read aloud, before he left, that five convicts—four of them convicted murderers, had escaped.

One was a maniac murderer, guilty of a triple slaying—butcherer of three persons with a knife and an axe.

Jimmy tried to think of Thanksgiving. Troubled sleep came at last. He was being shaken. His body tensed. Then, a voice called, "Buddy."

"I hear a noise in the basement. What do you suppose it is?"

Jimmy put on a brave air. "It's that cat I saw running out. He must have come back through the coal chute."

Frances went back to her room. Jimmy's mind turned again to the siren—the escaped murderers.

Ten—fifteen minutes passed. The unmistakable rattle of sliding coal.

Clump, clump, clump. Footsteps down there, surely. Frances was at his bedside again—trembling. "I can't sleep. You must go down and put that cat out."

Jimmy wasn't sure at all that it was a cat. Cats don't clump, clump over concrete. But he couldn't back down before his older sister.

Both Jimmy and Frances tiptoed down the cellar steps, turning on the lights. Jimmy first opened the door to the food-storage room. In the dim light he saw nothing unusual. Then he threw back the door to the furnace room and entered. He glanced backward to see whether Frances was following him. She was. But, behind her, at the other door, was a sight that froze the blood of that 12-year-old lad.

A giant Negro—bared teeth and bloodshot eyes—was pressing the door shut with his powerful back. His right hand was on the knob. His left held a long-bladed knife—a butcher knife.

IT WAS THE ESCAPED AXE MURDERER—INSANE—DESPERATE. HE WAS MUMBLING—GRIPPING THE KNIFE CONVULSIVELY.

Jimmy and Frances screamed in chorus. Jimmy thrust his sister behind him. They retreated toward the wall. A 12-year-old boy facing an armed maniac who had fought off armed posses of grim men for days—over-powered prison keepers and escaped.

The murderer was weaving stealthily forward, muttering. The knife was bobbling for a thrust.

His words were intelligible, now. "They'll never get me. They'll never get me," he repeated.

Jimmy's arms stretched backward to protect his sister. His hands touched something.

Dad's tool bench!

The smooth, hickory handle of a riveting hammer was in Jimmy's fingers. Instinctively they closed upon it. The convict was still advancing. Hardly aiming, Jimmy flung the hammer with his good, right baseball arm at the leering face, less than six feet away.

Blood spurted. The heavy hammer had struck the murderer squarely across the bridge of the nose. He sank to his knees, scrambled for a few dazed seconds—staggered to his feet.

Frances raced for the dark stairway. A black hand seized her flowing nightgown. Jimmy seized her, literally tore her free. She plunged up the stairway. She fell. Jimmy fell across her. Up again.

Into the kitchen. The stairs shook with the heavy tread of the killer behind them.

They were crossing the dining room—the front door their goal.

A thud on the floor. The butcher knife, hurled by the convict, quivered in the floor beside Jimmy's foot. Blood spurted high, but brother and sister plunged on.

Frances flung open the door. Out into the blizzard, screams rising over the howl of the storm.

Lights flashed on. Jimmy and Frances fell exhausted upon a neighbor's porch. Police found marks of the struggle, and giant footprints leading from the Hagles' front porch. The convict had disappeared in the blizzard.

A few nights later, the killer prowled again. He was captured after a desperate battle. Today he is serving, in solitary confinement, the remainder of his life sentence in the Kansas State prison.

And there, boys and girls, is something for those kids to remember all their lives. Adventure right in their own cellar. But I've got another one—a woman's adventure—yes sir, women are just as brave as men. Hop around to the club tomorrow and I'll smoke up the story. Maybe you can guess what it's about when I tell you that this woman's friends all call her "RATTLESNAKE KATE."

MANAGERS TOO FRIENDLY

SAYS LEAF BOSS WHO DREADS PEACE MEALS

By Bill Grimes

Through wins over the Maple Leafs and the Blackhawks last night, the Bruins and Red Wings stepped a full stride nearer the honor berth of the American Division.

The Bruins knocked off the Leafs 3 to 1 and the Wings upset the Hawks 2 to 1 in Chicago.

Aubrey Victor Clapper was the hero of the Bruin-Toronto game . . . A Victor figured in the first Bruin tally, which was scored by Max Kaminsky and then went out and scored the other two Boston goals . . . According to Connie Smythe, Art Jackson will be the best center ice man in the N. H. L. within two years . . . Connie failed to show up at the press dinner last night . . . He offered many excuses for his absence, the best of which was that a year ago he was allowed to cool his heels in jail without any member of the Bruins coming to his rescue.

Game Slips

But, to be serious for the moment, Smythe is of the opinion that there is far too much fraternizing in hockey and that the game will soon revert into a sissy affair if the managers break bread before each contest.

Gordon Mellkleibn, who will lead McGill against Harvard tonight at the Garden is the first American-born player to ever captain a Canadian hockey club . . . Mellkleibn is a New Englander so born to be pro-Harvard this evening . . . Although McGill lost such stars as Nels Crutchfield, Jack McGill and Tom Robertson, Coach Bobby Bell is confident that his Red Raiders will ante up over Harvard.

Although it has not won an O. H. A. game this season, Toronto Varsity came over the border and knocked off Harvard, Yale and Princeton, taking three falls out of the Crimson, two from the Bulldog and singleton from the Orange and Black . . . Leo Gagnon, brother of the Bruin right winger, is playing with the Stratford juniors . . . He is the leading scorer of the league and a promising left winger, who is headed for the big tent.

BATTLES GETS TROJAN COURT OFFER

The Snyder brothers, Solly and Sam, are dickering with Cliff Battles, the Reddskins' stellar back . . . The Snyders are under the impression that Battles is some pumpkin as a basketball player and they figure that his presence in the Trojans lineup will not injure the gate . . . Cliff Purpur, who has caught on with George Boucher's St. Louis Eagles, was with the Cubs in Quebec but not for long . . . He was sent back home before he had been able to get the feel of the ice . . . He is another American who had trouble breaking into pro hockey until "Buck" Boucher came to his rescue.

Phil Bessler, the scrappy Cub right winger, will be out of the game for at least another week with his wrenched shoulder.

Dit Puts Bruins In N. L. Race

By scoring two of the three goals registered against the Toronto Maple Leafs last night at the Garden, Dit Clapper put the Bruins right back in the running for the American Division championship.

The Bruins, before an inspiring crowd of 15,000 fans, turned in their best performance of the season last evening. They jumped out in front of the Leafs early in the first period, when Marty Barry, Dit Clapper and Max Kaminsky combined for the first goal and were never headed.

1st Goal Break

Kaminsky's first period tally was a break for the Bruins, but Clapper put the ice in the well known satchel by scoring twice in the second period. Marty Barry was credited with an assist on Dit's first marker, and Eddie Shore came in for a point by passing to the pride of Hastings for the second counter.

While the Bruins were laying back protecting their three goal lead in the third period, Art Jackson and "Pep" Kelly teamed up to save the Leafs from a shutout.

Wings Win

While the Bruins were setting back the Leafs, the Red Wings were beating the Blackhawks, 2 to 1 in Chicago. Through the combination of the Bruin and Detroit victories, the Hawks were yanked back to within a half game of the Americans, and the Rangers picked up a point by tieing the Maroons.

The Bruin Cubs departed for Philadelphia this morning, but they are due home tomorrow for an engagement with the Arrows at the Arena. The Cubs have dropped three games in a row and are now only a stride in front of the Rhode Island Reds.

Keeps Crown

Ted Germaine, light heavyweight champion, retained his mat title last night in the feature fray at Mechanics Building. He defeated Wins Robbins, two falls out of three.

Germaine took the first in 14:32, with a giant swing, while Robbins won the second in 3:27, with a top body press.

Other results:

Buck Jones was from Young Bomper, 17, 135, Manchester; Pat Shaeffer won the battle royal in 30:33; Jack Sharkey refereed the free-for-all; Don Byrne and Jack Pilla drew; Sandy Marthonald and Nicholas Arena, "Masked Yellow Jacket" drew; Dutch Schmitt, body press, 11 cc press, 16.33; Wasbo threw Bunker Dean, body lift and slam, 1:45.

NAVY PLAYS HARVARD

BIG-TIME GRIND FOR CRIMSON

ARMY ALSO ON SCHEDULE

AMHERST GIVEN SPOT ON CARD

William J. Bingham, Harvard's director of athletics, exploded another gridiron bombshell this morning with the sudden announcement of the Crimson's 1936 schedule, the choice tidbit of which is the fact that Navy has been added to the eight-game list.

Two other newcomers, Amherst and Virginia, are awarded places on the Stadium card of events, so that the Crimson schedule assumes for the first time "big time football" proportions.

October 3, Amherst at Cambridge; October 10, Brown at Cambridge; October 17, Army at Cambridge; October 24, Dartmouth at Cambridge; October 31, Princeton at Cambridge; November 7, Virginia at Cambridge; November 14, Navy at Cambridge; November 21, Yale at New Haven.

OUSTS H. C.

Thus Harvard becomes one of the very few teams in the country which play both of the nation's service teams.

The game with the Army is the third on the schedule, October 17.

Navy, replacing Holy Cross, as was predicted by the American some months ago, will appear in the final Stadium game of the season, on November 14. The Harvard-Yale game will be played at the Yale Bowl, New Haven, November 21.

Harvard has not played the Middies since 1908. Then the two teams battled to a 6-6 tie at Annapolis.

Yet the best of relations always have existed between the two institutions, and the resumption of that rivalry adds another colorful spectacle to an already star laden schedule.

Harvard's schedule makers apparently have the utmost confidence in the Crimson's new grid leader, Dick Harlow, to lead them out of the wilderness, for they have assembled a list of opponents which would tax the ability of any team in the country.

24 YEARS

The only games which possibly can be termed breathers are the opening game with Amherst and the pre-Navy game date with University of Virginia. Yet both are far superior to the teams which they replace, Bates and New Hampshire.

Harvard resumes relations with Amherst after an interval of 23 years. The last Harvard-Amherst game was played in 1912.

Virginia last appeared at the Stadium in 1931, the first year of Eddie Casey's regime as head coach. Last fall the Colonels played on early season game with Dartmouth at Hanover.

It takes great goal tending to save without a stick. Here's Hainsworth of the Maple Leafs after stopping a shot from Shore who came down with Barry, at the Garden last night. He couldn't save enough, so the Bruins won, 3 to 1, before 15,000 fans.

TY COBB'S DRIVE A BIT OFF LINE

Finesse Gone, Yet Sluggers Can't Tie Vets

By Joe Cashman

Ty Cobb, our Pacific Coast operatives report, doesn't think the modern ball player "so hot."

The fiery Georgian, greatest all-around performer baseball has ever produced, says the present day star doesn't even know how to employ the hit and run play or slide into a base.

While records tend to bear out Ty's conclusion, his reasons are about the weakest he could offer.

It's true that the players of this era don't pay much attention to hit and run, stealing and the other phases of inside baseball that featured diamond competition in Cobb's day. But they're smart in that respect.

Finesse Useless

There's little profit in trying to outguess the other fellow when the weakest hitter on your ball club is as likely as not to propel the lively ball clear out of the park.

It's percentage for every hitter to wind up and swing from his heels, and for every base runner to stick close to his bag until the batter hits or misses.

Cobb, however, could present a powerful argument to back up his assertion, especially when it comes to hitting.

As greatly aided as they are by the "jack-rabbit" agate, rules which prohibit pitchers "doctoring" the pill, and the use of a new ball in play every few minutes, the leading hitters of today are pygmies compared to the slugging giants of yesteryear.

Six times the American League batting champion has finished with a mark of better than .400, but the last time this happened was back in 1923.

Terry Hit .401

Twelve National League swat kings have finished higher than .400, but the only one to do it since 1925 is Bill Terry, who compiled a mark of .401 in 1930, a year when the ball set a new high for liveliness and there were over 50 in the .300 list.

Now consider the feats of some of the old-timers. When the hurlers could roughen a dead ball as they wished and keep it in the game until it became almost black, it happened more than once that a .400 average didn't win the batting crown.

One Sam Thompson of Detroit hit over .400 on two occasions and didn't walk off with top honors. Others to do it once and fail to lead the pack were Dan Brouthers, Jess Burkett, Fred Clarke, Ed Delehanty, Ferguson and Turner. The last mentioned batted a cool .428 in his futile quest.

In short, the modern player must admit that dad and granddad were his superiors in the art of hitting.

De Benedictus WINS IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

Emilio De Benedictus, former all-scholastic tackle at Medford high and co-captain of last year's New York University football team is on the road to recovery following a serious illness.

The week before the game with Fordham he suffered a kidney injury. An operation was performed, and pneumonia developed. Then he was stricken with rheumatic fever.

"Big Ben" refused to be counted out. Each day he responded better to the efforts of his doctors. Finally he returned to his home in Medford for a rest. His condition now is far from perfect but he has won the fight.

Dick Harlow Silent on Grid Plans

By Associated Press

Philadelphia, Jan. 9—Football Coach Dick Harlow, who succeeds Eddie Casey as mentor of the Harvard University grid forces, isn't making any plans for his Crimson teams until he arrives on the scene of his future activities.

He hasn't decided yet' on the assistants he will bring to Harvard with him, he told a host of gridiron coaches, players and enthusiasts at the University of Pennsylvania's annual football club dinner last night.

Harlow was one of the guests at the gathering, which annually marks the election of the football captain. For the 1935 season Paul Leo-Stofko, ace guard from Pottstown, Pa., was chosen to lead the Red and Blue forces.

Congratulated

Harlow and discussion of his new job, however, were given considerable attention. Asked concerning the rumor that J. Neill (Skippy) Stanley would leave the University of Delaware to become his assistant at Harvard, Harlow said he hasn't "given it a thought."

"And," he added, "I won't pick any assitants or form any plans for some time, or until after I have visited Harvard."

Later, Lou Young, former Penn coach, lauded the new Crimson director and Harvard on their new relationship.

"I want to congratulate Dick on his new job," hea aid, "but I want to congratulate Harvard more. In securing him, Harvard has gotten a man who is fair and conscientious as well as a great football coach. Yale and Princeton may well look to their laurels with a man like Harlow at the helm at Harvard."

AUSTEN LAKE on Duffers' Boon, Or, Solving Golf's Secret

I AM STUDYING THE MAGAZINE ADS of the latest golf-club invention, a little rocker-like surface at the heel of the club, which allows the addict to scuff the turf behind the ball and still tag it on the nerve center for a sweet, straight drive.

Austen Lake

Thus, once again, the secret of golf has been solved, in a sequence of such solutions which started when the primitive feather-filled ball was replaced by the guttie and later by the modern pill which retails for 75 cents.

Likewise, there has been a steady stream of new mallets and expensive tackle offered by the golf quacks as a cure-all for any deformity.

Now the most bewitching feature of this national distemper called golf is the barefaced delusion that anybody, of whatever age or sex, can play it.

It is a simple self-faith in which the sufferer sees none of his infirmities and blames himself last for his miseries.

The golf-tool makers, or scientific blacksmiths, trade on this optimism by forging beautiful sets of patented jewelry under the pretence that the sufferer, by swinging these clubs entirely wrong, may realize correct results.

Do you twitch about the pelvis? Do you quiver at the elbows or quake or squint or suffer from reoccurring buckjumps?

If so, the scientific blacksmiths have the cure in their little lead plugs, metal wens, or hand-hammered steel goiters which move the sweet spot in the club face to meet your need.

This tends to cause the sufferers to pine and fret until they discard their old-fashioned mallets and buy a complete case of new ones and begin their agonies all over again.

Max Baer vs. John Doe in Boston

IN SIGNING A JOHN DOE contract with Mr. Rip Valenti, the Boston boxing maestro, Max Baer gives Boston the chance to prove it is a heavyweight championship fight town.

The battle, to be held in a Boston ball park next summer against an unnamed fighter, will establish the city's willingness to patronize the finer things in fistic culture.

Presumably Mr. Valenti will try to entice Jack Sharkey, the ex-champion, who has been growing the bulges of middle age behind his Washington street bar, out of retirement on the theory that $50,000 would be a great temptation to Sharkey, whose income has been whittled down since he succumbed to a right-hand uppercut in the sixth round at his fight with Primo Carnera.

Lacking Sharkey, Mr. Valenti will turn to one of the mediocre pot-boilers who clutter up the boxing scene just now, an inept collection of second-raters and stumblebums who are more comic than ferocious.

In which case the Boston sport public, which is notoriously discriminating, will keep its cash under padlock, and the test of their willingness to pay will be no test at all.

Phantom Horse-Dope

WHEN GENERAL COLE, the State Race Commissioner and his playmates, arrive in Miami next Tuesday to study dog-track conditions, they will also do a little research into the new horse-doping science that is supposedly being practiced down there.

A secret stimulant which defies the saliva test, and which is described as having all the dynamiting effect on a horse's system without actually violating the federal law against narcotics, is baffling Miami stewards.

Miami was the spot where horsemen declared a short-lived strike when the saliva test was adopted last winter, saying that cough medicines, which were invaluable in their trade, would register strychnine content in the tests.

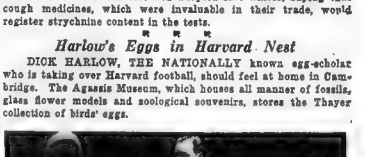
Harlow's Eggs in Harvard Nest

DICK HARLOW, THE NATIONALLY known egg-scholar who is taking over Harvard football, should feel at home in Cambridge. The Agassiz Museum, which houses all manner of fossils, glass flower models and zoological souvenirs, stores the Thayer collection of birds' eggs.



Big Bill Still Cannons 'Em

This, one of the most complete egg hordes in the country, contains a large number of specimens which Harlow himself gathered from many mountain ledges and jungle trees.

Harlow, One From Twenty

INCIDENTALLY, HARLOW was the last of 20 coaching prospects which Bill Bingham interviewed on his tours over the last month. In fact, since the football season ended, Bingham gave all his time and energy to coach hunting, a lone wolf prowl that carried him many thousands of miles into the bushlands.

In the end, just before he huddled with Harlow, he was seriously considering six of the original 20.

He had a list of a dozen standardized items against which he checked off the qualties of the prospects.

Finally, when Harlow measured almost perfectly, Bill wondered whether the rigors of the quest, with attendant brain fag, was not making the last look best.

In addition to the 20 prospects, Bingham interviewed more than 200 friends, advisers and graduates. Which makes the fact that no informational leaks were sprung to tip off news snoopers all the more remarkable.

ONE OF THE FATHERS of the Longwood Cricket Club, Boston's tennis altar, tells me the professionalising of the game under the Tilden Tourists is having a beneficial effect in educating people who previously had only a casual interest in the sport.

This amounts to acknowledgment by the social tennis set of their debt to the commercial tennis men.

The professionals have long since lived down the sissy implication of the technical term "love" and the elaborate courtesies of the court, and the sports world now realizes that it is a game requiring plenty of foot and the delicacy and skill of billiards, and that the lean, limber young athletes who play it all day and stay up all night, could, on occasion, lick their weight in bartenders.

$2900 Each, First Night's Pay For Lott, Stoefen in Pro Net Bow

By Universal Service

New York, Jan. 9—The defection of two more tennis players from the sacred realm of amateurism is celebrated tonight at Madison Square Garden. George Lott and Lester Stoefen, accepted doubles champions of the world, have their baptism of impious professionalism in a contest with Ellsworth Vines, world's professional singles champion, and Big Bill Tilden.

For this perennial flowering of top flight indoor tennis, which opens a 24,000-mile tour, takNAKE KES Lott and Stoefen appear at 72 cities, a sellout crowd of 16,000 is forecast.

If the sellout is realized, Lott and Stoefen each will receive approximately $2900 for their first professional performances. Even in their palmiest amateur days, neither received as much as that.

The program will open with the doubles. Vines will meet Stoefen, and Lott plays Tilden in singles.

Boston is looking forward to a tremendous outpouring when Vines, the Hub Garden next Monday.

Monday's matches will again be under the auspices of the Longwood Cricket Club, which has agreed to provide the officials and will share in the receipts. Lott is teaming with Lester Stoefen against Tilden and Vines in doubles. The Lott-Tilden match in singles will open the program and the closing match each night will be a sort of Ruth-vs.-Gehrig slugging affair, because Vines and Stoefen are conceded to be the hardest hitters in active tennis today.

Faceoff at 8:30 p. m.

Harvard and McGill stage a grudge fight, at the Garden tonight, that tops the season's intercollegiate hockey bill. The Redmen already hold a decision over the Crimson, gained in an early season game.

McGill, too, is smarting under an unexpected defeat meted out by Yale at New Haven two nights ago But the Redmen will find Harvard a different team tonight. Three games at Lake Placid with Toronto have resulted in remarkable improvement in the play of Joe Stubbs' sextet.

New Lineup

In addition Stubbs has reshuffled his material. George Ford, rated among the greatest schoolboy hockey players ever to appear in Greater Boston, has been promoted to center on the first line.

Ford and his old partner, Leo Ecker, still are separated. But Stubbs believes he has found suitable wingmen for the former Belmont High ace in Al Dewey and Louis Carr.

Ecker, too, earns a starting assignment at right defense pairing with Captain Bill Watts, while Dick Dow and Thornton Brown constitute the relief defense. Harvard's second line will have Arthur Duffey, Jr., and Sam Callaway at the wings, and Fred Moseley at center. Hallowell, Holmes and Hovenadian, the famous "H" line of the 1934 Yale series, form the third forward trio.

Shakeup

McGill's lineup, too, has been shaken up by Dr. Bobby Bell following the surprise defeat at Yale. The new starting line has Crutchfield at left wing, Lamb, center, and Duff, right wing. Tommy Morse, the McGill sophomore star, is being held in reserve.

Gordon Meiklejohn starts at right defense with Hall at the other point and Ollie McHugh, veteran goalie, in the nets.

DANNO Takes on RUDY

ENDS 3-HOUR CONFERENCE

McGRATH, MORAN TRAIN IRISH HEAVY

Dan O'Mahoney, Irish heavyweight wrestling champion, has signed to battle Rudy Dusek in a finish match, best two falls out of three, at a Paul Bowser show at the Garden a week from Friday night.

The bout was signed after a three-hour conference at the office of the promoter.

O'Mahoney has offers to wrestle in New York for Jack Curley, in Philadelphia for Ray Fabiani and in Montreal for Lucien Riopel. He was anxious to accept one of these bids.

"I think you should first meet Rudy Dusek," insisted Bowser. "Of course he's pretty tough, and may lick you, but one has to take chances to get anywhere in the wrestling game."

"Sure, I'll wrestle Rudy," shot back O'Mahoney. "The fellow punched me in the face, and he isn't going to get away with that. He can have Ernie and his two other brothers in the ring with him, and I'll lick them all."

Bowser produced the official contracts, and Jack McGrath, acting for O'Mahoney, signed them. Bowser inserted a clause in the contract which prevents the Irish sensation from wrestling any other opponent before meeting Dusek.

O'Mahoney will continue to train here under the direction of Jack McGrath and Freddy Moran. He will specialize on his "Irish Whip."

TROJANS PLAY AN EXHIBITION AT CONN. CITY

FACE NEWARK AT ARENA NEXT MONDAY

By Bob Ahearn

"Watch Lou Spindell" will be the slogan when the Trojans square off with the Newark Mules in their American League basketball game next Monday night at the Arena.

And WATCH him they will, for a win over the Mules will keep the Trojans in the race for first half honors.

Spindell was voted the most valuable player in the circuit last season. Along with Benny Borgemann, Tiny Hearn, Jazz Chirmadis and Lefty Kintzing, Newark will furnish the Snyder-Alving combination plenty of trouble.

Last night at Worcester, Coach Fiddie Morley's hoopsters defeated the Worcester Hibernians in an exhibition tilt, while Thursday finds them at Bridgeport for a game with the Edison Electric quintet.

League encounters will be played at Newark Friday, Jersey City Sunday and here Monday.

REBOUNDS—Coached by Frank Gaffney, the Avons of Lynn are in the field for games. Joe Louise and the Barber brothers, Eddie and Frannie, and Joe Lombardi are on the squad. B. U. SIX SLAMS TECH AT ARENA, 5-2

Boston University's hockey team wove a net of defeat about M. I. T. last night on Arena ice as the Scarlet and White won 5 to 2.

Unleashing their scoring power, the Terriers finally clicked in a game which saw play get very rough in its final stages.

Co-captains Johnny Lax and Paul Rowe were the ace weavers for B. U. and the ace bladesmen each scored twice, with Russ Lynch, feeding twice for markers, center.

PEDAGOGUES BOWL IT OUT AT HANLEY'S

McCARTHY'S 131 HEADS PIN LIST

By Ed Cogswell

There is a great gathering of high school masters at the Shanley Alleys each week. They have so many teams in the league that the entire three floors were put in use in the last season.

McCarthy topped with a single in 131, and a total of 332. However, McGrath gained the three-string honors with his 336.

Hall got after the pins in the opening string in the Finast League at North Station with 138 but the best three-string scores were made by Raymond on 339 and Cordeau with 320 . . . Wells is still slamming them down for rich scores in the Sons of St. George League at New Boston Alleys, his latest effort being a string in 129 for a net of 322.

Modes kept up his rapid pace at the Huntington Club, in the Lever Brothers League, when he connected for a total pinfall of 337 . . . Tyo still maintain his standing, of over a hundred average, in the N. E. T. & T. League, though his last match netted him just 308 . . .

In the Post Office League it is noted that Regan turned loose with spares and strikes to make a splendid score of 148 in his first string.

Columbia Wins

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 9—Rallying in the last ten minute, after trailing for most of the game, the Columbia basketball team defeated the Princeton five, 28-23 in the University gym in an Eastern Intercollegiate League game.

B. C. QUINT BRINGS SPORT BACK TO HEIGHTS

Although basketball is not an official sport at Boston College due to the lack of practicing facilities, a group of football players, all of whom are also proficient at the court game have organized an independent hoop team. It is named the "B. C. Independents."

The men who make up the team are all prominent gridsters from Coach Joe McKenney's eleven. Outstanding are Bobby Curran, Everett Gallant, Tom Guinea, and Gerry Pagliucia, all of whom are forwards.

Tom Brennan and Ted Galligan are guards.

Bob Cash, 210 pounds and six foot three inch end on the football team makes an excellent center. A schedule is being drawn up including games with some of the best amateur teams in the state.

Baer Wants Fight With Sharkey

By Jack Conway

MAX BAER has come to terms with Rip Valenti, matchmaker, of the Goodwin A. C., for a great outdoor boxing show at one of the ball parks next summer. The official signing is set for today.

Baer will box ten rounds against any opponent named by Valenti. The champion prefers to meet Jack Sharkey.

"I know that a bout between Sharkey and myself will draw more money than any other contest that could be arranged for Boston," said Baer, "and am out to make as much money as possible while champion.

Mr. Boston

"There are people who think Sharkey can outpoint me over the ten round route. I don't agree with them, and I am willing to prove my argument in the ring under fire."

It's like Baer's confidence in his own ability. He is ready to take on all-comers. He believes he can conquer any man in the world.

GREAT CARD

I WATCHED hundreds of persons trying to get into Jerry Buckley's Gym on Friend street to get a peek at Baer in action.

"This is the greatest crowd I have ever had in my gym," said Jerry Buckley. "Baer is a wonderful attraction and should sell out Mechanics Building for his four round bout with Dixie Bladen."

JACKIE AND MAXIE

Baer shadow boxed and did some bag punching. He looked to be in excellent condition.

Max would not require more than two weeks of intensive training to get ready for a title defense match.

Babe Hunt, who opposes Buddy Baer in a six round bout, also limbered up his punch at Buckley's Gym. Hunt recently went four rounds with Max, and says he will hand Buddy a whitewashing.

OLIN HERE

BOB OLIN, world's light heavyweight champion, is here for his ten-round bout with Fanis Tzanatopolous at the Garden on Friday night. Olin was to wrk out at Kelley & Hayes' Gym today. The "Greek Terror" has been training at Buckley's Gym.

Olin recently proved he possesses real fighting ability when he outscored Maxie Rosenbloom over the 15-round route. As he fought his way to the title, Olin won 31 out of 80 bouts by knockouts. He is a free hitter, and will try to level the "Greek Terror."

If Olin takes the gamble and tries for a kayo, he is liable to get his on the chin. Fanis is one of the best punchers to bob to these parts in recent years.

He hits well with each hand, and is of the opinion he will halt the career of the champion. If the "Greek Terror" wins in the ever-wight match tomorrow night, Olin will be forced to give him a title contest at the required notch of 175 pounds.

In the eight-round semi-final, Hans Birkie will throw punches at Al Boros of New Bedford. Birkie and Boros are heavyweights and each knows how to punch.

RANDOM SHOTS

LOU BROUILLARD has signed to meet Frank Battaglia of Chicago at Pittsburgh on January 17 . . . Andy Calahan will appear against the best available opponent in the New York Garden on January 18 . . . Jerry Buckley is going to Miami, Fla., to work for Bort Mahoney in the mutual department at Hialeah . . . Jerry did similar work at Rockingham and Narragansett.

Dan O'Mahoney drew a net gate of $10,078 for his American debut . . . This topped by $1000 the gate drawn by Gus Sonnenberg when the latter stepped into big company after having had 27 bouts . . . O'Mahoney is only 22 years old and should get better with each start . . . He now weighs 215 pounds . . . I look for him to weigh 230 pounds after he has been training for two more months under the direction of Freddy Moran.

OVERSTIMULATE BEST BENTHAM HORSE GOES IN 7TH

BANDERILLA IN OPENER

OPINION LOOKS STANDOUT IN 2ND HEAT

By Dave Wilson

BEST BET—OVERSTIMULATE

Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 9 — In Overstimulate, Trainer Dewey Bentham has a gee gee primed for an old-fashioned comeback dinner in the one-mile of the seventh spasm here tomorrow afternoon. I make him my best bet on the card.

Banderilla, Irish Play, Camden

FIRST RACE—$600, cls ming, two-year-olds, maidens, three furlongs

12 Banderilla 107	Corbett	5-1
4 Irish Play 110	Leonard	3-1
7 Camden 113	Pascuma	10-1
3 Alfred G M 110	Stiffler	8-1
8 Zowie 112	Steffen	10-1
5 Marble Bird....110	Mahlo	15-1
4 Bit K High Brow110	Filbert	10-1
2 Heatherdell 107	Mitchell	10-1
10 Dyrdyra 107	Pichon	15-1
11 Cohort Lass 107	Hanks	15-1
13 Winning Time 110	Steffen	15-1
1 Regular Monk 110	Mueller	20-1
1 Easy Lotta 110	B Rencz	15-1
1 Joan Patrol entry

Wee Jack Howard, who usually has a bend of fresh juveniles on hand, will start BANDERILLA, a half sister to Alberuerque, in this affair. According to the clockers, the Greenock-Pleasure Miss is a gun away from the barrier. IRISH PLAY was a cooking third to Eddie T. last out. CAMDEN has worked well.

Opinion, Smooth Crossing, Ventured

SECOND RACE—$600, claiming, four-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

2 Opinion 112	Meade	2-1
1 Smith Cross'in 117	Horn	5-1
9 Ventured 112	B. Rencz	8-1
10 Pull Up 107	Fowler	8-1
11 Hermanella 107	Bryant	8-1
14 Octavron 112	Arcaro	10-1
8 Flash Surrender 112	Adams	10-1
2 Pyrrhus 112	Lauzon	10-1
3 Nellie 107	Hanks	10-1
4 Energetic Boy 112	Gilbert	15-1
5 Land Runner 107	Pichon	15-1
7 Ride Choice 107	Mahlo	15-1
12 Alsky 107	Filbert	15-1
6 Teddy Lee 117	Wilson	20-1
15 Rinky Dar 110	M Winters	20-1

OPINION a corking second to Scotch Gold last out, appears to stand out in the light in this number. SMOOTH CROSSING is much better than that last effort. VENTURED, a good route horse, worked six panels in 1.13 for a final.

Fred Almy, Prior, Fervid

THIRD RACE—$600, claiming, four-year-olds and up, six furlongs

Fred Almy 112	Fowler	2-1
Prior 107	Lindberg	5-1
Fervid 110	Merritt	7-1
Protagonist 110	Arcaro	10-1
Wakening 110	A. Watson	10-1
Wee Rewie 110	Meade	15-1
Lotta Bird 107	Mahlo	15-1
Border Knight 115	R. Watson	15-1
Grace Ritter 112	Peters	20-1
Mazy 112	Peden	20-1
Hidden Lore 110	Talbott	20-1
Victorium 112	Gilbert	20-1
Sunny Mate 107	Smith	20-1
Greek Maiden 105	Vasquez	20-1

FRED ALMY and Don Meade should prove a difficult combination to down. The Jack Hare, Jr. colt is dropping five pounds off that last good effort. PRIOR figures to offer the contention. FERVID is a money possibility.

Royal Duchess, Seawick, Uncle Billy

FOURTH RACE—$700 claiming, three-year-olds and upward, one mile

Royal Duchess 112	Short	4-1
Seawick 107	Merritt	4-1
Uncle Billy 113	A. Smith	6-1
Fairy Wand 112	Arcaro	8-1
Esquipel 112	Wright	8-1
Mayor Fay 110	Meade	10-1
Grandson Boy 110	R. Rencz	10-1
Ben Ali 110	Mahlo	10-1
Mae Sing 100	G. Watson	10-1
Hermanella 110	Arcaro	10-1
Mattie 100	Lindberg	15-1
Mae 100	Lovell	20-1
Golden Saint 108	Bryson	20-1

ROYAL DUCHESS loves this strip and figures to extend her winning streak to three straight. SEAWICK, a clever Maryland winner, recently whirled five panels in 1:00. UNCLE BILLY may be underrated.

Broadsword, Herowin, Sun Tempest

FIFTH RACE—$700, claiming, four-year-olds and up, furlongs

Broadsword 112	Peters	2-1
Herowin 107	A. Watson	3-1
Sun Tempest 110	B. Rencz	6-1
Mary Rose 107	Bryant	6-1
Candlecoal 110	G. Watson	6-1
Annie Drake 107	A. Watson	8-1
Gentle Lady 103	Parvin	10-1

BROADSWORD, a winner earlier in the meetings, looms as a standout here. HEROWIN, a slow beginner, figures to be along in time to save the place from SUN TEMPEST. The latter has worked well.

Stegal, Foxy Agnes, Hardware

SIXTH RACE—$800, allowances, three-year-olds and upward, one mile

Stegal 115	Meade	2-1
Foxy Agnes 110	Malley	3-1
Hardware 110	Mahlo	6-1
Percival 110	Vail	8-1
T. Brook 110	Hanks	10-1
Bonus 110	Meade	10-1
Belaire 110	Litzenberger	20-1

Under the weight arrangements STEGAL may reverse the tables on FOXY AGNES, one that drubbed him by a narrow margin last out. It figures very close between the pair. HARDWARE will reinish the route.

Overstimulate, Gifted Lady, M. J. Brennan

SEVENTH RACE—$700, claiming, three-year-olds and upward, one mile

Cozy Bismuite 108	G. Watson	5-1
Gifted Lady 107	Horn	2-1
M. J. Brennan 112	R. Watson	2-1
Lilla 112	Wright	4-1
Keasprize 101	Meade	8-1
Reaver Dam 107	Parvin	20-1
Colt 110	Merritt	20-1
Quiet Queen 108	Minor	20-1

Snuffy, the Hearst driver, had the finger on OVERSTIMULATE last time. He is capable of better things, as may be attested by a recent half mile in :47 2-5 breezing. Contention, if any, will be furnished by GIFTED LADY. M. J. BRENNAN for what is left.

Flowery Lady, Flag Wave, Phara

FOURTH RACE—$600, claiming, four-year-olds and up, one mile

2 Flowery Lady 111	Bailey	3-1
3 Flag Wave 113	Man-fold	3-1
2 Phara 104	Centara	10-1
1 Marrette 109	Merritt	5-1
4 Irrivenna 103	R. Watson	10-1
1 Rumage 104	Lynch	10-1
6 Guiding Light 107	Crittenfield	3-1
5 Peace Treaty 110	Winters	15-1
1 Dorga 103	Lindberg	20-1
10 Hero Oak 107	Meade	20-1

Petrin Tests Al McCoy

Al McCoy, colorful Dorchester light heavyweight who recently stopped Buck Tracy, meets worthy opposition when he tangles with Don Petrin, Jersey battler, in a 10-round bout on the Goodwin A. C. card at Mechanics Building tomorrow night.

Petrin has won from Joe Knight, Al Stillman, George Nichols, Billy Jones, Eddie Sims, Bob Godwin and Yale Okum.

There is also considerable interest in the Boston bow of Tom Patrick, coast heavyweight. Patrick will face Jack McCarthy in a ten-round go. McCarthy has improved greatly under the coaching of Dick Sharkey, and is headed for the finic heights.

Al Diamond will tangle with Johnny Reed in a ten-round mill.

Minor Loops Recovering Says Expert

By W. G. Bramham, President
National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues

Durham, N. C., Jan. 8 (AP)—Turning into 1935, the minor leagues of baseball find themselves in a more strategic position for their program of expansion than they have violoned in several years. There are several factors contributing to this gratifying situation.

Ever since 1932, the crisis year for the minors, when the close of schedules found only 13 leagues in operation, the National Association has bent its efforts toward rehabilitation and expansion.

There was some encouragement in 1933, when 14 circuits began the season and all finished. Last year 19 leagues completed their schedules.

One of the chief factors in the stabilization of our circuits has been legislation in opposition to the so-called shoestring operator, a menace to the game, whose activities had more to do with disruption in some territories than the economic depression.

He is being pushed out of the scene. At our annual convention, more legislation was enacted against him. Every operator now will be required to post a cash guaranty with the treasurer of the national association before the start of the season.

The promotional department of the national association, charged with the duties of organizing new leagues and lending a hand wherever needed, has an ambitious program.

Some 20 proposed additions to membership have been contacted. We do not expect to add 20 new leagues to our roll for 1935, but we do hope to get the best of these prospects inside the ranks of organized baseball.

200 Miles an Hour on Water

THAT IS AIM OF GAR WOOD IN MIAMI SPEED BOAT TESTS

By International News Service

New York, Jan. 9—Two hundred miles an hour in a boat!

Seems impossible, doesn't it? If Christopher Columbus could have made that speed he would have reached our shores in one day!

Impossible as it may sound to the layman, Gar Wood, speed king of the waters, said today it is not only a possibility, but a decided probability for the near future.

"The world," said the slender, white-thatched veteran, "has gone speed-mad in an answer to the universal urge for speed; human ingenuity has stepped up machines until now no record on land, air or sea is safe from assault.

"When I drove a boat 78 miles an hour they told me the limit had been reached. Then I put in a bigger and better engine and the speed became greater.

"Finally I put a 6400 h. p. engine in my 46-foot Miss America X, and you know the results—both with its 7800 h. p. engine new record of 124.90 miles an hour.

"That, you may say, is going some, but you haven't seen anything yet. Wait until I speed my over the water at Miami a few weeks from now. I won't venture a prediction, but I'll bet I move it along faster than 125 miles an hour."

How is it possible to drive a 40-foot boat, weighing six tons and looking something like an old mud scow, at such speed?

Rides on Air

"Well," says the quiet little driver, "you really travel more on top of the water than through it. Although the boat weighs six tons it's riding only on four square feet. The rest of it is out of water and the boat is really traveling on compressed air."

"Dangerous? Oh, sure. That's part of the thrill."

And what would happen, say, if a man were to jump out of a boat going 200 miles an hour?

"Well," says Gar, "he'd probably look as if a locomotive had tossed him 500 feet. Certainly, he'd be just as much broken up as if a railroad train had hit him."

Anybody like to take a ride with him next month?

INDIANS Standout TO RAJAH

SOX MYSTERY CLUB OF LOOP

TIGERS IN NEED OF OUTFIELDER, PITCHER

By Associated Press.

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP)—Rogers Hornsby, long recognized as a peerless baseball seer, has shoved Cleveland's Indians strictly on the spot for the 1935 American League pennant fight.

Although no less than five clubs in the circuit figure their chances of landing the prized flag range from good to excellent this year, the usually accurate rajah has started a rush to the Cleveland bandwagon by predicting the Indians would be the team to beat in

Since the Rajah, boss of the improving St. Louis Browns, made his prediction, the experts, almost to a man, have come out of winter hibernation to pick the Indians.

DETROIT—The Tigers need at least one hard-hitting outfielder, who may be Chester Morgan, Texas League batting champion in 1934. They will have two promising southpaws in "Tiger Joe" Sullivan and Jacob Wade, two first class rookies.

NEW YOR—Outfield is a mystery because of the passing of Babe Ruth, Fred Walker, Ben Chapman and Earl Combs. Infield doubtful. Pitching, with good, would be great if Johnny Allen can come back.

Sox Mystery

CLEVELAND—Catching is the big problem, but Manager Walter Johnson ha good prospects in Berend and George, who may take over the backstop duties from Pytlak, a good catcher with brittle hands. Rest of team appears to be fairly strong, with a great looking infield prospect coming up in the person of Louis Berger, New Orleans star.

BOSTON—The Red Sox are the big "IF" club of the circuit. Much depends on the comeback of Lefty Grove and George Pipgras. The infield, apparently too weak for a pennant contending club, may yet be strengthened by the acquisition—for a lot of money—of Melillo of the Browns.

WASHINGTON—All the Senators ask is a season without disastrous injuries. Pitchers are good but getting older. Whitehill outpitched all his rivals on the Japanese tour, said Connie Mack.

PHILADELPHIA—Jimmie Foxx will start behind the bat if first base can be plugged. The team is young and strong and Manager Mack promises his A's won't always lose those 1 to 0 games.

CHICAGO—Will depend almost strictly on young pitchers. Prospects are bleak.

ST. LOUIS—Hornsby did wonders with his material last year, but appears to have good looking crop of rookies, who may hand the league a big surprise.

Judge Named

Theodore Otterman of New York, one of the outstanding judges of dogs, has been named to select best dog in show at the 23d annual Eastern Dog Club exhibition in Mechanics building, February 21 and 22.

This announcement was made with the issuing of the premium list for the annual classic, entries for which close at the Eastern club's offices, 80 Federal street, on January 31.

AMERK SHOW

Jimmy McGarron, Somerville lightweight boxer-banker, and Bill De Marzio, Norwood's bid for heavyweight honors, have both sent in their entries for the Irish-American A. A. amateur boxing tourney tomorrow evening.

Others who will participate include: Ralph Zennelli, Elmer Murrell, John Whalen, Walter Gardner, Frank De Vito and Walter Wazel.

Fitzsy Signs

New York, Jan. 9 (INS)—Fred Fitzsimmons, ace relief hurler of the New York Giants pitching corps, today sent in his signed contract.

The knuckle ball expert has been one of the most consistent tossers the Giants ever had. He has been especially effective against the Brooklyn Dodgers and Bill Terry is counting on him to take at least six games away from the team across the bridge.

Perry Wins

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 9 (AP)—Fred Perry showed a convincing return today when he defeated Georgio De Stefani, the Italian, 6—0, 6—0, 6—0, to enter the semi-finals of the Australian tennis championships.

Ruth-for-Tribe Move Still On

McKechnie Business Boss Under Plan

By Bill Corum

Connie Mack says Babe Ruth stopped a war between the United States and Japan, but that he has no place for Babe with the Philadelphia Athletics. A fellow really has to have something on the ball to stick in that American League.

What good is a guy who stops a war if he can't stop a guy at the plate, eh?

The Ruth-for-manager of the Boston Braves campaign still is on the fire, however. The man who really owns the Braves wants Ruth for manager on the field with Bill McKechnie in the business manager's office, and it has been my observation that the man who owns the watermelon patch usually winds up picking the melons.

Tribal Snarl

The affairs of the Boston club are, and have been for some time, in a bad snarl. But the people who really have money invested in the team are just as firmly convinced now, as they were when Ruth left for the Orient that Babe's presence with the Braves Field brigade is their only salvation against the rising tide of Red Sox popularity.

The old guy who stands alone was ready to talk business with them at a reasonable figure when he left. There is no reason to believe that he still won't be when he gets back.

Gorman Sure

Tommy Gorman, the Ottawa Saturday night flash, called up a few minutes ago to tell me to bet my shirt that his Montreal Maroons would win the Stanley Cup this spring.

"How can you beat Toronto?" I asked.

"How can we keep from it?" he queried back. "We just got through beating them on their home ice, and can repeat on anybody's ice, anywhere, any time."

It must be admitted that hockey championships follow Gorman from town to town like trained pigs. Nevertheless, I do not intend to bet my shirt on the Maroons. I must go on liking those Toronto sweaters, something classier in the way of a hockey team comes along. With me, the Leafs are a combination blue plate special and sizzling platter—with mushrooms.

Free Spender

"There'll probably never be another fellow around our town who let's go as readily as William Vincent Dwyer, the race track and hockey magnate. From one end of Broadway to the other Bill is known as 'the man who can't say No'."

What reminded me of this was a story that Young tells of Dwyer's new Palm Island Club at Miami Beach and the show Earl Carroll is staging there. This is not the same Rose Young who used to play the outfield for the Giants, so don't write to tell me that Rose Young is dead. I know about that. Besides, the outfielder's name was really Youngs.

Anyhow, Carroll was telling about his show, probably the most lush entertainment ever offered at any resort anywhere.

"When I started with this show," said the producer, "I thought maybe Mr. Dwyer would be willing to spend ten or twelve thousand dollars."

"But," he added happily, "would you believe it, he's got fifty thousand dollars in it up to now?"

That's how the money goes, pals. And even if there isn't fifty G's in the show, it's a story that shows you how the mind of a producer works. Also I boldly predict that if the gambling hd is not "histed" in Miami pretty soon, Dwyer will get his money back out of the show—in about 15 or 20 years.

Louis Is Brave

Pittsburgh, Jan. 9 (INS)—Joe Louis, sensational Negro heavyweight, was to take his first workout here this afternoon in preparation for his scrap Friday night with Hans Birkie, German-American heavy.

Louis arrived from Detroit last night asserting:

"I'll be ready for Max Baer about March. I want a few more fights and then I'll take on whoever is champion."

Gallop Leads Pack With Trio

Gallop, American turf selector, led the pack home at Tropical Park yesterday. He chalked up a record of three winners.

Day Signal, third, paid $4.90.
Hogan's Fox, fifth, paid $11.20.
Big Red, seventh, paid $7.50.

Other handicappers fared as well. Dave Wilson's Best Bet, Day Signal, romped home a winner, while Gaby's choice in the fourth Highest Point, won. Trackman listed Civil War and Sticks Wealther. Civil War was the long shot of the day, rewarding his backers $32.70.

The Horses to Watch column daily feature of these pages, enjoyed a banner day. It had Fundit win at Santa Anita.

Just another reason why the Boston Evening American is THE RACE PAPER for New England folks.

How They Rave!

Los Angeles, Jan. 9 (INS)—Minnesota would be too powerful for Southern California.

"The Chicago Bears would wear down Minnesota."

These today were the assertions of Coach George Halas of the Chicago Bears who will play the Chicago Cardinals here Sunday.

"Alabama must have a fine team. I saw Minnesota play though and I think the Gophers would be too powerful for the Southern eleven," Halas said.

"Minnesota? We'd wear them down!" exclaimed Halas.

NewDealPlans

Some HEADED FOR Discard

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Faster and faster come Washington hints that various New Deal schemes are headed for the boneyard. News dispatches now carry word that alternatives for processing taxes and benefit payments are being sought.

Admitting these are emergency measures, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace indicates that renewed studies for possible substitutes are being made. Signs that the cash payment idea is reaching the limit of effectiveness as well as continued and, in some quarters, increasing opposition are held responsible for opening the way for changes.

It is hoped that substitutes will not be as heavy burdens for industry, particularly cotton.

earnings during 1935 will be the lightest in three years, thus removing one of the chief concerns in any period of reduced earnings. Orders for rolling stock, which undoubtedly will fill out sentiment among leaders, are rising. Early in December there were 1711 new freight cars on order, compared with 125 on a similar date in 1933. These are the factors bullwarking rail shares and enabling a somewhat better showing of late than other groups displayed.

Notes: Of the lower priced shares we hear favorable comment regarding Houdaille Hersey, National Dairy and Foundation . . . The only one we find it hard to become enthusiastic over is Dairy . . . The boys are talking optimistic figures for American Can . . . It may be worth noting the issue is spending a lot of time in the 118 area . . . Possible consolidation, but since it is the top range, probable distribution . . . Does not lead the market higher forever . . . Others come forward to take their place. . . .

The situation abroad is not so completely simple that investors can afford to ignore. In fact, the cables today suggest it be given close attention. Of course there is an apparent flight of capital. Leading shares have been snapped up during recent sessions of the Bourse and prominent commentators have pointed out that despite the great debt of the United States, it is not proportionately as great as that of France. At the same time concerted opposition to redistributing of government securities has made an appearance.

Shorts—The French franc and the Dutch guilder have both shown weakness of late . . . To our mind these are the two most important continental currencies . . . Texas Corporation makes a good single stock index for the oil group . . . We would not care to see it touch 39 flat . . . A flyer it has avoided through all sorts of news for some months . . . That extra dividend on Briggs was welcome . . . With the news out of the way a short dip in the shares would do no harm.

Greatest single danger to the bullish cause is probably the unbalanced state of the general list. With many shrewd buyers determined to remain conservative until the rails come ahead the high peak to which the industrials have climbed is dangerous. The reason is clear. Holders of long stock are likely to decide the latter had a false move and do some sudden selling if the rails remain laggard for very much longer.

Figures SHATTER Delusions of New Deal Heads

By B. C. FORBES

Washington's Napoleonic delusions of omnipotence should be shaken, should indeed be shattered, by the confessions embodied in the budget figures.

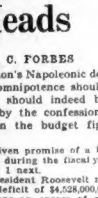
We were given promise of a balanced budget during the fiscal year starting July 1 next.

Instead, President Roosevelt now estimates a deficit of $4,528,000,000

Which means an excess of governmental income of some $15,000,000 every business day of the year.

That falls quite a bit short of balancing the income and outgo doesn't it?

The trouble is that officials at Washington, especially brain trusters, have been obsessed by the delusion that they were almighty, that they could force prosperity's return, that they could single-handedly restore business activity and employment, that they could scorn cooperation from industry, from business, from employers, from investors, from anybody on earth.



B. C. Forbes

Surely the budget, with its demand for some $4,000,000,000 for relief work and its staggering deficit, should effectively squelch that childish delusion, a delusion born of megalomaniacal egotism.

Washington, of course, cannot possibly restore anything approaching normal economic conditions unless and until it can restore something approaching normal faith in it and its plans, policies and practices.

It follows that Washington's very first objective should be the restoration of confidence through sincere, intelligent, far-sighted, consistent efforts to enlist the cooperation of all thoughtful, responsible, forward-looking citizens.

Governments never can by and of themselves create prosperity, but they can thwart prosperity. It is within the power of governments, however, to create confidence; and confidence forms foundation for building prosperity.

Is it too much to expect that Washingtonians will now grasp these elementary but fundamental truths?

Despite all uncertainties, not a few companies are driving ahead, preparing to cope with business expansion. We hear much about home ownership; plant renovation is also under way in many places.

Charles Edison, more than a year ago told senatorial investigators: "Before we can have any real general recovery, the heavy industries must be energized and the building trades revived." As president of Thomas A. Edison Industries, he has been showing an example by spending large sums on modernization, equipment, extensions. One entire building was demolished and an up-to-date new one erected. Ditto a rolling mill. All buildings have been repainted, factory and office departments enclosed in new partitions. Sanitary conditions have been improved.

President Kettering tells me that the Jewel Tea Company financed out of current earnings the opening of sixty new wagon routes last year, spent $50,000 to air-condition headquarters, and "has materially increased the number of its employees, throughout each of the last five depression years."

Budget Spending Program Is Analyzed

(This is the first of a series of six short articles on "Breaking Down the Budget," showing where $520 million dollars is coming from, and where it will be spent by the federal government.)

By M. L. RAMSAY
Universal Service

Washington, Jan. 9—Balanced federal budgets, once the financial first commandment of every American fiscal officer and orthodox banker, apparently are ruled out by the "New Deal."

That is the first and overshadowing fact about the financial policy of the next few years, as indicated by the $520 million-dollar budget just submitted to Congress by the President's covering message and his informal comments.

Lack of balance will influence spending, go far towards shaping money raising and bear profoundly on prospective attempts to inflate. Whether it presents any serious direct threat to government credit is a question upon which opinion divides sharply.

The known facts are that, on the basis of estimates of spending which appear liberal, the government will put out in various directions $528 million dollars more than it takes in, in the next fiscal year.

At the end of that period it will have run "in the red" in three years and in gross figures 13,336 million dollars. Some deficits thereafter are considered assured, their amounts dependent upon the extent of unemployment.

There are big offsets. One, generally recognized, is the 1569 million dollars of expenditure for debt retirement in the three years, reducing the total of deficits to 11,817 million dollars net.

On the great bulk of these the administration predicts the government will ultimately get its money back.

(The second article of this series will appear tomorrow.)

Bond Market PRICES HIGHER IN DULL TRADING

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—The major trend in the bond market continued upward today, but the pace was slower and most gains were within fractional limits. Transactions were small.

After two sessions of rising values of the U. S. Government list, it showed a tendency to pause for consolidation of its gains. There was little volume in treasuries, but moderate dealings in the Home Owners' Loan issues at prices that were a shade below yesterday's closings.

Buyers paid slightly higher prices for American Smelting 4s at 104⅝, American Telephone 5s at 112⅜, Santa Fe 4s at 107⅜, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s at 82⅝, International Telephone 5s at 68⅜, Northern Pacific 4s at 104, Postal Telegraph 5s at 47¾, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s at 98.

In a few of the secondary rails limited offerings depressed values, as in Missouri Pacific 5s, series F, which yielded a point, and Southern Railway 4s, off ½ point.

GRAINS

Chicago, Jan. 9 (INS)—With speculative interest light and market influences colorless, grains were steady today. Wheat was unchanged to ¼c off, corn and oats were ⅛c down to ⅛c up.

Wheat: May 101⅝; July 97⅞; Sept. 92¾.

Corn: May 91¼-⅜; July 86⅝; Sept. 84⅝.

Oats: May 54⅜-⅝; Sept. 44⅝.

Message Called STAGGERING Blow

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics New York University

New York, Jan. 9—The budget submitted by the President is a staggering blow, and the more so in that it comes in what he calls the "third year of recovery."

Briefly, it proposes to have the federal government spend over $8,500,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

It provides no additional revenues, so the public debt is to be increased by $4,000,000,000 new borrowing.

The President changes his guess at the maximum debt toward which we are plunging to $34,000,000,000.

Thus, there can be no pretense now that we are balancing the budget or making any progress in that direction.

In fact, the budget prepared by the President so obviously omits large expenditures which are likely to be made that the actual budget will probably be even more unbalanced. He makes no provision for government contributions to the various insurance schemes which he advocates—unemployment, old age, etc. He makes no allowance for payment on the "soldiers' bonus," or for remitting interest on loans to the veterans.

No intent or plan to balance the budget is apparent. What would you do if you wanted to balance your own budget? You would economize in spending and try to increase your income. But the administration does neither.

Instead of economizing, we find the salaries of government employes being raised and a larger number of ex-soldiers put on the pension rolls. Expenditures for "general public works" are added to the "regular" items.

Instead of increasing income, it recommends no additional taxes "for the present."

The gist of the matter is that the President makes the national budget a gamble on business recovery. He says the $4,000,000,000 which his four-billion-dollar-a-year deficit can be reduced, if business does not recover sufficiently, then the budget will not be balanced at all.

Since he calls this "the third year of recovery," yet calls for $4,000,000,000 of additional public debt to care for able-bodied unemployed, no one can wonder what the deficit will be in the fourth and fifth years of such "recovery."

The point to note is that the more the government spends and the more unbalanced its budget, the less the chance of business recovery. Business cannot recover when the oxygen in the blood of business is being destroyed, which is exactly what is happening when money ceases to be a standard of deferred payments, and credit therefore confused.

Given a stable money and a sound basis of credit, I believe business would soon recover. But these conditions can never be met with an indefinitely unbalanced federal budget.

Flirting With Lester Proves Enjoyable

Helen Tries Social Work

CHAPTER XLV

The following day Cecily called on Captain Lockwood at his office in the bank.

"I want a job for Helen, Phil. She's in the dumps. She ought to do something. We've considered all the lady-like possibilities; interior decoration, tea rooms, dress shoppes. Unfortunately all these take a certain amount of talent and training but social work . . ."

"I like that!" Philip Lockwood exploded. "Don't you think social work takes talent and training, young woman?"

"No," Cecily exclaimed bluntly. "It's the windiest profession on the market. That's what Dirk always said. Helen has brains and charm. Oh, such charm, Phil!"

"I know it. Darn sweet girl. Too bad her marriage was a flop. But never did cotton to those Rileys—"

Cecily nodded but said nothing. "What could Helen do, then? Social work may be windy, as you so pungently put it (I can hear Dirk laugh—damn it, how I miss him), but Helen is utterly without office experience or case work experience."

"She's got to do something, Phil. She's depressed and listless and she isn't interested in anything. I thought if you could give her a job it would be a step in the right direction for her. Another man would help . . ."

'Talent of Helen's'

"To bad I can't qualify there," he snickered.

She laughed. "Seriously, Helen is a woman made for love and marriage. She's a born wife; she has a real talent for wifehood."

"Don't belittle that talent, Ces. I wish more women had it."

"Belittle it! I wish I had it."

Phil looked away from the plain, intelligent face opposite him.

"I think this talent of Helen's may be redirected into other channels, however. She's so gracious and adaptable."

"Send her to me tomorrow at 10 and in the meantime I'll pull some strings and arrange it so she can do something on Monday.

"Fine. You can give a general promotion at the association and fire the man at the very top! That always seems to me to be a particularly nasty job—disappointing people and the chap at the head is probably lazy, unsatisfactory and offish. No one will miss him. Thank good-bye, Phil. Kiss the kids for me. Helen will be here at 10, good-bye—and thank you."

"Don't mention it, Ces. At your service any time. You know that!"

Helen Schiller—for this was the name under which she entered her new job—did become a very useful social worker, a second Lillian Wald or Jane Addams.

She was told to report Monday at nine at the office of the Tuberculosis Association to begin her duties as receptionist in a gloomy office presided over by Fourth Avenue. She fluttered in at nine-thirty (the bus simply crawled) wearing her simplest dress that was distinctive because of its simplicity. Her duties were not arduous. She was to ask visitors whom they wanted to see and then to decide whether the person was too busy to see them . . .

Helen Keeps Busy

The technic was simple. The important executives were too busy to see anybody but the most important people. The case workers were to handle all the cases and these were to be referred to one Miss Milligan, a tired-faced, middle-aged, neat woman, who would then refer the case to the proper investigator.

By noon of her first day the office was a shambles.

"I'm so sorry," Helen apologized contritely, "but he didn't say he was a carbon paper salesman. Why, he said he had in his brief case a paper to revolutionize the office detail of the organization. Oh, the wretch! I thought surely he must have been someone terribly important."

Nor did it help matters when Helen kept out the president of the board of directors, a meek, gray little man who said he didn't want to see anyone in particular; but just anyone who wasn't busy. Helen severely sent him about his business.

"How was I to know he was president of the board of directors?" she wailed. "Why, he looked just like a bank clerk!"

Fortunately Mr. Cudahy, whom she sent away so unceremoniously, was completely captivated by Helen's charm. He made a great joke of his dismissal but the laughter of the others was a little sickly.

The girls in the office were not slow to realize that Helen hadn't bought her clothes on a salary as a reception clerk. "She's probably Lockwood's sweetheart," was the consensus of opinion.

Identity Revealed

But they liked her in spite of their envy. She was so disarming in her ignorance of office procedure, so pleased at their suggestions even when they were given sniffishly. The hardest part of her job was getting in at nine o'clock. No matter how early she left the apartment, Helen came in late. She was one of those people for whom trains are delayed by short circuits; floods and blown-out fuses. Firemen held fireless in her way and forced her to make detours of eight blocks or poor men were thrown by runaway horses and Helen was held (only too willingly) as witness. Helen never lied—Mrs. Ingalls didn't even believe the truth!

"Where do you live, Miss Schiller?" she questioned acidly.

"On Washington Square."

"On the Square?"

"Yes, Washington Square North."

"Oh!" And her "Oh" was poisonous.

Then by astute questioning, Miss Ziegler, one of the secretaries, made the horrifying discovery. "Why, she's a society woman doing social work as a fad."

Which, of course, was unforgivable.

One day one of the case workers, Miss Birde, fell and dislocated her hip. Mr. Meech was about to telephone the Social Workers' Exchange for a case worker when Helen pleaded earnestly. "Mr. Meech, couldn't I be a case worker, temporarily, until Miss Birde recovers? I think I could do the work. I understand it and I think I'd be much better fitted to work with cases than here in the office."

Mr. Meech, who was assistant director, looked at Helen through his spectacles. He was a plump, middle-aged man, who was said to have a very sad story behind him.

"It would certainly be giving the cases a break to have anyone as lovely as you to call on them," Mr. Meech remarked unexpectedly.

"Oh, Mr. Meech." Helen blushed in embarrassment.

"And I don't know but that it wouldn't be a good thing!"

"I'll work so hard and I'll do everything Miss Birde did. She explained everything to me. I'll take courses at night at the School for Social Workers, too."

"That won't be necessary." he said drily. "Some of the ablest social workers in the country haven't gone through all this new-fangled academic hocus-pocus. There's no harm in trying. I've a hunch you'll make a fine case worker. You have brains, intelligence and enthusiasm."

"Oh, Mr. Meech, thank you!"

But it happened Mr. Meech was wrong.

Bursts Into Office

It is undoubtedly true that Helen had brains, intelligence and enthusiasm. She had, in fact, too much enthusiasm.

* * *

Helen burst into the law offices of Lester Molyneaux one day to ask his help in one of her cases. She was so excited to notice that the walls were hung with tapestry; that the carpet beneath her feet was royal blue and softer than sand and that the reception chair could have graced the Follies if she could sing or dance or even act—which she couldn't.

She was admitted without a moment's wait.

Lester Molyneux looked up from the papers he was signing. Helen was unimpressed by his immaculate gray suit, his spotless linen or his great private office with its paneled walls and marble fireplace.

"I want a job for Helen, Phil! She's in the dumps."

He rose as she dashed toward him. Was this beautiful, flaming girl the pale, apathetic Helen Riley of a few months ago?

"Why, Mrs. Riley, how do you do! What a pleasure. Won't you sit down?"

"How do you do. Oh, Mr. Molyneaux, you must help me! It's really an outrage. This woman's husband he's dead, was an ex-service man and she looks so tired. She's a splendid woman but you see the oldest two have tuberculosis and she's an incipient case . . ." Then seeing his look of utter astonishment, she began to laugh. "I suppose you think I'm crazy."

"I think you're magnificent."

"You don't know so I'll have to begin from the beginning. Oh, dear." She sat down. "I'm a case worker. I'm working for the Anti-Tuberculosis Association."

In a few moments she explained the case to him. He listened attentively.

"Well, Joan, I think I can help you."

"Oh, fine. But I think you've mixed me up with two other people. I'd better save you from future embarrassment. The name is Helen—Helen Schiller Riley. Not Joan."

"To be sure. Helen of Troy but also Joan—Joan of Arc!"

"Oh, Mr. Molyneaux, how gallant!"

Helen suddenly realized that she was enjoying herself. She was flirting with Lester Molyneaux, the first time she had flirted in years and years and years. And she loved it.

Records Incomplete

Molyneaux looked at his watch. "It's noon. Haven't you served humanity sufficiently for one morning? Won't you give me the pleasure of taking you to lunch? And then I'll go with you to your worthy Mrs. McNaughton and we'll see what is to be done."

* * *

If there was something irregular in the dispatch with which the McNaughton case was disposed of, by the time it came to the attention of the proper authorities at the Charity Organization Society everyone had forgotten just who the investigator was and just what had happened anyway. And even though the case was satisfactorily closed, the records were so deplorably incomplete that there was great to-do over it in the offices of the Mighty.

Lester Molyneaux had never married. "his was the one experience in his life he hadn't had.

Counties Must Go

The People Want Reform

THE Massachusetts Selectmen's Association, meeting in the State House, went on record as against "any move to abolish county government."

The vote was taken after an address by Frederick Butler of Andover, president of the Massachusetts County Commissioners' Association.

Mr. Butler is a county commissioner himself. It could be imagined that an interested county official might oppose being legislated out of office.

But for a body to go on record after hearing ONLY ONE SIDE OF THE QUESTION, is as if the jury in the trial of Bruno Hauptmann were to make its decision after listening ONLY TO THE WITNESSES FOR THE PROSECUTION.

WE read that Mr. Butler cited the need of "courts, jails, registries of deeds and hospitals."

This must have fired the worthy selectmen with honest enthusiasm.

But, after all, WHO HAS SUGGESTED doing away with any of these necessary institutions?

Certainly NOT those in favor of cuting down county governments, of abolishing duplicating and wasteful and unnecessary methods of government.

It is likely that the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association was dominated by Republicans. And the vote might have been largely inspired by partisan desire to cast a monkey wrench into the plans of Governor James M. Curley.

For Governor Curley within the week has called in a powerful message for doing away with counties. This is no partisan matter.

IT has been wisely pointed out that transfer of such county institutions as need to be continued into State government would be an easy matter.

Those holding public office TODAY will do well to HEED the WILL OF THE PEOPLE.

Governor Curley has voiced this admirably.

America the Best

Few Will Leave Us

It's not necessary, even though helpful, to be a college president when it comes to sound arguing.

This was illustrated at Ford Hall recently. A speaker declared:

"We do not like the things you liberals are sticking for. We do not enjoy culture. We do not even come here for education. We are those who have had the seamy side of life in America. The revolution has got to come."

It was Mrs. Sullivan, head of the supper committee for Ford Hall folks, who replied:

"I was born here 78 years ago. I have always lived here. I, too, have seen the seamy side of life.

"But I have found my country a good country and I wish to ask all who believe that the Russian revolution has brought about a better living condition to go to Russia and live there.

"This country is still good enough for us."

This woman knows how to use FREE SPEECH as it ought to be used. We congratulate her.

Mighty few people will accept that invitation to leave the land of the TRULY FREE.

Women as Jurors

What's the Objection?

Controlling powers, not necessarily representing the majority, have so far prevented legislation to enable women to serve on juries in the Bay State.

Judge Sadie Lipner Shulman recently presented a strong plea for such legislation before the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts.

If a woman is qualified to act as judge, why should she be barred from serving as a juror?

Stopping the Criminal

Bates' Idea Excellent

Sanford Bates, elevated to federal prison service from the Bay State, has the right idea for warring on crime. He calls for

"Faithful execution of the sentences prescribed by the courts."

This idea, however, is NOT original with Mr. Bates. It has long been advocated by the Hearst newspapers, with protests against the "parole racket."

In the past few years Massachusetts has gained an unenviably high position among the states by its many pardons and paroles.

This misguided era seems now to have ended.

If the sentences imposed by our courts are carried out without interference, political or otherwise, a growing fear of the law will be inculcated in criminal circles.

Hendrik Van Loon

WRITES ABOUT

The Cop on the Beat

The other day I read of a policeman in New York who after 18 years, during which he had never made an arrest, had finally lost his temper and hauled an extremely abusive driver into court. I admire that man. I think that he is worthy of a Congressional medal.

Hendrik Van Loon

I myself would last but a brief time on the force. Though even now, after losing 35 pounds, the remaining 250 would still help make me eligible as one of the "world's" finest.

But I am still human. Very human. And only a super-human person, with super-human patience, should try to qualify for the job.

HONESTY PREVAILS

Greater New York, if I am not mistaken, has about 7,000,000 inhabitants and some 20,000 policemen. That gives us about 350 citizens for every local gendarme.

And how many of those 350 would dare to deny that nothing gives them as much joy as to be able to say, "I had a run-in with a cop today and geel did I tell him where to get off!"

Having known many policemen personally, and often (I am happy and proud to say) intimately, I am willing to get up right here in meeting and state that, in my own humble opinion, the average cop would infinitely rather be honest.

Not merely because he wears a uniform and is subject to military discipline, but because the average rank and file of human beings (in contrast to the average nation) is honest by preference.

I leave it to the preachers and the pedagogues to decide how much education and religious training have to do with this general desire to keep straight.

But in a world in which a fair degree of honesty and integrity has been established as the desirable norm of conduct, 99 out of every 100 people will closely stick to that norm, and at times they will go to all sorts of privations to be able to do just a little better than was expected of them.

HOW DO THEY DO IT?

All of which brings me back to my first paragraph, and once more I ask myself the question, "How do these men in their blue coats manage to acquire that patience and forbearance which one usually associates with the angels of Heaven?"

For the population of our great metropolis is not exactly composed of an aristocracy, either of the intellect or of good manners.

The problem I cannot solve is this: How, by and large, can a policeman keep his temper doing the job he does, and with the kind of people he has to deal with, many of them regardless of race, color or previous lack of employment, inspired with the hidden longing that some day in their career they may put something over on the cop.

Human Side of the News

War by Machines

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

How will the next war be fought? We have heard from the scientists that gas and chemicals will be the deciding factors, used in conjunction with the airplane.

Now we have it from no less a body than the general staff of the United States army that the conflict of the future will be a matter of machines with victory on the side of the quick.

It is the dashing Douglas MacArthur, who comes forward in the midst of the investigation into munitions and munitions makers with the statement that it is up to America to go in for more and better equipment if it wants to be on an adequate defense base for whatever may come.

Not that the general's words have anything to do with the munitions controversy. They are his annual report to the Secretary of War.

Only coincidence links them with the work of the Senate investigating committee, but into them can be read this lesson:

Any program drafted for the munitions industry must have as a primary consideration the upkeep of our military establishment.

General MacArthur had meant this report as the final summing up of his four years as chief of staff.

Under the tenure of office law he was to step down for another. However, he is a breaker of precedents and a person for whom precedents are broken. Secretary Dern told the President he wanted him longer, and the President just wrote a letter keeping him on the job.

The handsome MacArthur, who does not look his 54 years, led his class at West Point in 1903, and 27 years later, almost to a day, had reached the rank of general.

MacArthur, then 50 years old, was without doubt the youngest man to make that height in peace time. Only Grant, Sherman and Sheridan of the Civil War held the rank of full general.

My recollection of the general is a six-footer, slender, dark-skinned and brown-eyed, astride a dappled gray charger riding down Pennsylvania avenue, Washington. The occasion the inaugural parade for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Today General MacArthur holds that war, as we knew it, and as he saw it so closely in 1914-1918, is outmoded. Trenches and static fronts are a thing of the past. He says:

"Future warfare will witness a maximum utilization of relatively fast machines for transportation with consequent greater frontage in strategic development."

Frontal assaults against strongly held positions will be avoided for speedy and surprise attacks on the flanks.

There, he says, we should get rid of our hopelessly out-of-date tanks for the modern 40-mile-an-hour type and give up our French 75's, which are markedly inferior nowadays, for more efficient field artillery.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Is It "Right If It Doesn't Hurt Anyone Else"?

I know of no poorer test of the goodness of an act than the old axiom—"IT'S ALL RIGHT IF IT DOESN'T HURT ANYONE ELSE."

Elsie Robinson

More fine lives, I suspect, have been wasted or wrecked by that theory than by any other device of the devil.

I'm thinking of poor Alma Winters as I write. Alma's edging fifty now — a pathetic, withered husk of a woman. For thirty years she waited to marry Fred Stone—and didn't, because of Poor Mama.

There was nothing really against Fred, but Alma was a firm believer in the "mustn't-hurt-the-other-fellow" test. Obviously, if marrying Fred DID hurt someone else, there must be something wrong about it.

SO ALMA WAITED

And Mama made it extremely plain that said marriage would hurt HER. So Alma waited — wondering a little at God's inscrutable rulings, but sure that in the end virtue would be rewarded.

Last year, a month before Poor Mama died, Fred up and married his red-headed stenographer. Now Alma's all alone—bewildered and bitter. How COULD God cheat her so, after all she'd done? What's the use of Being Good and Doing Your Duty if that's your reward?

God, of course, didn't cheat Alma. She cheated herself by her own needless sacrifice. God neither demands nor appreciates such sacrifices. He gives life, and expects His children to use that good gift joyfully, proudly and usefully. If they don't, that's their own fault—and they'll have to take the consequences.

"But it would have hurt Poor Mama—!"

It would—but that was Poor Mama's bad luck. If Mama, by her own selfishness, put herself in a position where she would be hurt by the normal processes of life, then she deserved to be.

And Alma was neither devoted nor dutiful in shielding Mama from that hurt. Alma should have married her Fred and given Mama the works. Which would, undoubtedly, have been extremely good for what ailed her.

AFTER MANY YEARS

I used to be Prince Charming,
But that was years ago.
I now am John Alarming
With faults that plainly show.
When I was wooing Nellie
She never dreamed or guessed
How many times the jelly
Would stain my shirt and vest.

Time was she thought me clever,
But that was in our youth.
Now done with that forever
She knows the bitter truth.
How swiftly fancies perish
Upon this earthly stage!
The little jests I cherish
Are mouldy now with age.

When we were both romancing
She never seemed to see
At night when we were dancing
How awkward I could be.
What varnish can be thinner
Than that which young hopes spread?
She sees me now at dinner
As one who dunks his bread.

The way my mother raised me
Completely turned her head.
Long years ago she praised me,
Whate'er I did or said.
But now my faults are many
As sadly she'll allow.
Of polish I've not any—
I'm just her husband now!

Daily Bible Text "Wisdom is better than weapons of war." —Ecclesiastes ix, 18.

By the Rev. Dr. Chellis Smith, First Baptist Church, Hyde Park.

It all seems so clear as you read it, doesn't it? And yet how often have you, yourself, foundered in just such a trap? And how many lives do you know that are thus hopelessly involved—and daring to make changes or run risks because of some selfish, stupid, sentimental obstructionist who "might be hurt"?

The simple truth is that it is IMPOSSIBLE to take any brave step without hurting SOMEONE. We are all cowardly by nature and we have devised a social order designed to protect cowards.

ALL STALWART THINKERS ENDANGER THAT ORDER . . . ALL DOUBTERS . . . ALL EXPERIMENTERS . . . ALL ADVENTURERS OR REBELS. Yet it is manifestly impossible for life to proceed without experiments, adventures and rebellions. So what?

So somebody's bound to be stepped on. And yell. Then proceed to allibi the yell with some bloosy bit of sentimentality. But should you let that matter? Or should you say:

"I'll stand by you and consider your feelings as long as you are willing to live as bravely, honestly and decently as I wish to live. But when you try to block my action simply because you're too lazy, stupid, timid or selfish to play the game—We SPLIT. And you'll have only yourself to thank."

Nor is it always THE OTHER FELLOW who's apt to be hurt by a lively life. IT'S DOUBTFUL IF YOU CAN TAKE A PROGRESSIVE STEP WITHOUT GIVING YOURSELF A BEATING.

Noble deeds are swell to contemplate—or boast about when you're old and the wounds are all healed. But they usually raise Cain with your comfort while you're performing them.

Personally, I've never yet committed one without feeling afterward as if I'd been through a concrete mixer.

But what of it? That's life. If you want it, you've got to pay the price.
